RUMANIA ROCKED BY NEW QUAKES

Explosions and Fires Increase Temblors' Toll

Searchers Trapped as Flames Spread Through Debris; Officials Place Death Total at 2,000 in Nation's Worst Quakes.

(By Associated Press)

BUCHAREST, Rumania—Thousands fled from homes and offices in mid-morning today as several new earth tremors shook Bucharest, toppling balconies while explosions and fires in ruins of an apartment block where nearly 200 still are entombed, killed an undetermined number of rescue workers.

Flames spread through the debris from bursting gasoline tanks, sealing the doom of all those trapped within and it was impossible to learn how many men searching for victims had gone to their deaths.

The known death toll from Sunday morning's violent quake, the worst Rumania has ever known, mounted steadily as communications were re-established with provinces where village after village reported fatalities, but officials still were reluctant to admit that the final total would be more than 1,000 to 2,000.

The quake, besides destroying whole villages, leveled masses of buildings in Bucharest and set raging fires in rich Rumanian oil fields.

Property damage mounted into tens of millions of dollars in the 5,000-square-mile area affected by the three-minute tremblor, which left thousands injured, homeless and terror-stricken.

Tens of thousands of German soldiers quartered in the kingdom pitched in swiftly to help in the rescue work, which was hampered seriously by broken communications, including almost complete suspension of rail traffic because of collapsed bridges and buckled tracks.

(Some neutral military observers considered the damage might constitute a stiff blow to possible German plans to move large numbers of troops through Rumania for a Balkan campaign. They also pointed out the damage to oil fields might slow down the flow of Rumanian oil to the Nazi military machine.)

The quake, whose epicenter was in Focsani, a city of 50,000 in the eastern Carpathian foothills about 100 miles north of Bucharest, struck at 3:39 a. m. (8:39 p. m. Saturday, EST).

Focsani and Galati, a city of 102,000 population on the Danube, were believed to have been the worst hit cities.

Bucharest's newest and most modern apartment building, a 10-story structure, collapsed at the very beginning of the quake and officials estimated 300 men, women and children were trapped in the wreckage.

Thirty bodies had been recovered last night from the wrecked

Quiz 2 In Springfield Plant Murders

POLICE HINT SABOTAGE, FIND DEATH WEAPON

BAR USED TO SLAY MEN

Machinist Found Dying and Watchman Dead; Victims of Crushed Skulls.

BULLETIN

SPRINGFIELD —(U.P.)— The bludgeon murders of two Springfield engine factory employes continued to mystify police today as they released two brothers after questioning them for 30 minutes.

(By Associated Press)

SPRINGFIELD—Two men were seized for questioning today as police strove to solve the mysterious killing of two workmen in a factory turning out Diesel engines for defense purposes.

Police Chief George Abele also reported the finding of an 18-inch, blood-stained iron bar, which he said undoubtedly was used in bludgeoning to death two workmen, but he still was baffled for a motive.

His investigators, cheered by their first tangible bit of evidence since the men were found slain at their posts in the National Supply company plant 24 hours earlier, probed the possibilities of sabotage.

The two suspects were seized at their homes because they had been involved in recent thefts of metal from industrial concerns. Police, however, did not say whether their questioning had linked the pair to the slayings.

The iron bar was picked up today near the lathe of Machinist Jesse Ray, 41, who was discovered dying from blows on the head about 5:30 a. m., Sunday. The body of Watchman Fred Frior, 45, was found outside the company's main building about the same time.

Chief Abele said the shape of the bar corresponded to the victim's wounds. Previously two pieces of blood-stained galvanized iron pipe were retrieved from a pile of shavings and were linked tentatively with the crime.

Admitting he was up "against a blank wall," Abele said burglary, robbery on a personal grudge were not being overlooked as possible motives.

He gave this account of the slayings:

Frior's failure to check a watchman's signal station caused some of the half dozen employes then on duty to investigate. They found him dead from three blows on the head.

Further investigation disclosed Ray unconscious from a crushed skull. He had been knocked from a seat beside the machine he was attending and died en route to a hospital.

Abele said a preliminary check disclosed no evidence of property damage or theft. M. J. Groeber, manager of the plant located in the city's southwest residential section, declined to comment.

Overcast Skies Threaten to Spoil Astronomical Show

Overcast skies threatened to spoil Mansfielders' view of Mercury crossing the face of the sun late this afternoon.

Members of the Amateur Astronomers club of Mansfield planned to set up equipment on Albert avenue this afternoon to view the rare event and measure the speed of Mercury. The spectacle was scheduled to occur at 3:49 and last until sunset.

Unless the sun breaks through the clouds before evening, however, there will be no chance to see the spectacle here.

Val Ishman, president of the Amateur Astronomers club, planned to go to Delaware today to watch the phenomenon through the big telescope at Perkins observatory at Ohio Wesleyan university.

Even if the sun appears, its partial eclipse by Mercury cannot be viewed except through smoked glasses. Mercury, a small planet, would appear only as a tiny dark spot on the sun's face.

GEORGE SEEN IN PITTMAN POST

Southern Senator Expected To Succeed Stricken Nevadan on Vital Committee.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—The unexpected death of Sen. Key Pittman (D-Nev.) gave post-election Washington a suddenly somber atmosphere today but, since governments must go on, Senator George (D-Ga.) was soon mentioned as the most likely man to succeed him as head of the important senate foreign relations committee.

Pittman, one-time Klondike sourdough, member of the senate since 1912, and chairman of the foreign relations committee since 1933, died yesterday. He was stricken Monday, the eve of his re-election for a sixth term in the senate.

President Roosevelt, saying he was "shocked and deeply grieved," led those in the capital who expressed regret at the Nevada sen-

FARLEY PARLEYS

Talks Over Yankee Purchase With Cleveland Broker.

CLEVELAND—(AP)—James A. Farley conferred today with Smith Davis, Cleveland broker, to discuss what Davis called the "final stages" of transferring the New York Yankees baseball organization to a syndicate of investors.

"I can't discuss it," Farley told newsmen as he arrived by train from New York. "The last word will come from the Yankee management and not from me.

"But the deal is not dead—as some reports have had it. It's still very much alive."

Farley, former postmaster general, is expected to be active head of the new organization.

Red Premier Nearing Berlin for Sessions

Press Warns America Must Recognize 'New World Order'; Pro-British Leanings of Turks Expected To be Studied Carefully.

BULLETIN

BERLIN—(UP)—Soviet Premier Viacheslav Molotov arrived on German soil in East Prussia today and was greeted by high German officials.

By PIERRE J. HUSS
(INS Staff Correspondent)

BERLIN—A warning that the United States must soon recognize the Axis "new world order" appeared in the German press today as preparations were made for a gala welcome to Soviet Premier-Foreign Commissar Vyachaslev M. Molotov, now enroute to Berlin from Moscow.

A thorough canvass of all problems affecting Germany, Italy, Japan and Soviet Russia may be expected when Molotov meets Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler and Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop, it was said.

And Turkey, whose pro-British leanings have long irked the Axis, will not be overlooked.

American attention was drawn to the Eurasian bloc and its importance to the future history of the world by Rudolf Kirchner, editorialist of the Frankfurther Zeitung, whose opinions were doubtless inspired by the highest official sources.

"The new world constellation created by Germany's initiative will confront America with large and decisive problems," Kirchner wrote.

"The new Euro-Asiatic bloc is bound to assume such importance that the United States cannot but accept the new facts and profit by the advantages they offer.

"Aim of the bloc is to create a permanent and regular relationship between Euro-African and Russo-Asiatic lebensraum (living space), with the question of Far Eastern Lebensraum involved as well.

"The future must bring recognition of the new world constellation by President Roosevelt's United States, because even a continent like America cannot afford to ignore the new world in creation."

A strong indication of Turkish collaboration with the Axis was seen in the fact that Franz Von Papen, German ambassador to Ankara who is now in Berlin, was guest of honor at a Turkish embassy luncheon.

Importance of Molotov's visit itself was accented by the large entourage of political personages accompanying him.

"Every field of Russo-German

ROUT: Italians Fleeing In All Sectors, Greeks Claim

(By Associated Press)

ATHENS—The Italian invaders of Greece "have lost the battle in all sectors and are retreating in disorder toward Albania," the Greek radio declared today.

Thus the radio summarized a series of Greek successes which it said had been won in 15 days of bitter warfare "despite the superiority of the Italian forces."

A smashing defeat of Italy's crack Alpine Centaur division — trained for a year in Albania for a lightning attack through the mountains into Greece — was reported by the Greek high command, which said large units of the division were annihilated.

Greece's highland troops were said to have swept onto the offensive along the whole 100-mile fighting front, routed the Centaur division in the Pindus mountains, wiped out two Fascist battalions along the Kalamas river on the Italian right flank, and crumbled the Italian left wing at bombarded Koritza, in Albania.

Greek confidence grew apace as the first downpours of the four-month winter rainy season made slush of snow in the mountain passes, deepened the mud in the lowland roads and threaten to to bog down mechanized war.

VICTORY: British Destroy 8 Italian Planes Over Thames

BULLETIN

LONDON—(AP)—British fighter planes shot down 26 Axis raiders—13 Italian and 13 German—in widespread air battles over Britain today, the government announced.

(By United Press)

LONDON—British fighters destroyed eight warplanes of Italy—World war ally of Great Britain—in a battle over the Thames estuary today after an air raid alarm at the historic Armistice day hour of 11 a. m. and a night of heavy bombardment.

Destruction of the eight Fascist craft, including five bombers, was announced by the air ministry following an official report that 10 enemy craft had been shot down during extensive daylight air operations.

British Hurricane fighters were credited with the victory over the Italians, which were attempting to attack shipping.

Axis airplanes flying over the city at the rate of one every minute hammered at British objectives all night and caused great damage in the London area.

In the first attack of the day, 100 German raiders were reported to have crossed the southeast coast in two waves. They hovered for a time along the coast, apparently in search of shipping, then proceeded toward London.

British Spitfires and Hurricane fighters went up to meet them. Raiders and defenders paired off in dog fights. Forty German planes reached the outskirts of London

Red Enigma

Speculation was rife throughout the world today as to the developments that would follow the visit to Berlin of Premier-Foreign Commissar V. M. Molotov, who will confer with German and Italian officials. The place of Turkey, British friend and guardian of the Dardanelles in the axis "new order" was expected to be discussed.

STOKE FURNACE, COLD'S ON WAY

First Blast of Winter Due To Arrive In City Late Tonight.

The first real blast of winter is due to hit the Mansfield area late tonight or Tuesday, bringing snow and temperatures well below freezing.

The cold wave will move in from the Rocky Mountain states where the mercury dropped far below zero today and snow blocked roads.

Rain is expected to turn to snow flurries in Mansfield by tomorrow as strong winds whip the cold into Ohio from the west. The temperature reading here at noon today was 56 degrees.

Striking with sudden fury, winter sent the mercury down to 21 degrees below zero this morning at Lewiston, Mont., 14 below at Havre, Mont., and below zero at a number of points in the mountain region. In Denver, Colo., the temperature dropped from 58 to 15 degrees in 24 hours. There was a blizzard in Idaho.

The cold reached southward into Texas and New Mexico. Santa Fe had its first snow of the season, while dust whipped by a gale blackened the snow in Colorado. Snow fell throughout west Texas and the Oklahoma panhandle.

Blinding snow of near-blizzard proportions, coming on the heels of the frigid blast which roared out of the northwest, wrought

Bottler Claims to Have 'Sure Cure' For Any Hangover

CINCINNATI—(INS)—A new vitamin B-1 drink which its makers assert "will make hangovers a thing of the past" was to be introduced today to the 7,500 delegates attending the 22nd annual convention of the American Bottlers of Carbonated Beverages.

The drink incorporates a synthetic form of the B-1 vitamin known as Thiamin hydrochloride, which, according to Earle A. Meyer, of St. Louis, president of the firm which is introducing the drink, is used by many hospitals in the treatment of alcoholics.

The drink will be available as a plain carbonated water for mixing purposes and in lemon-lime flavor.

Although the convention was not to open officially until Wednesday, most of the delegates have already registered for pre-convention sessions.

CITY JOINS IN OBSERVANCE OF ARMISTICE DAY

Customary Ceremonies Begin Ritual at 11 A. M. In Central Park.

PUBLIC OFFICES CLOSE

Parade Tonight Depends on Weather; Judge Huston Will Be Speaker.

Mindful of the new World war raging over Europe and Asia, Mansfielders along with millions of Americans observed Armistice day today with the fervent prayer that men of this nation would not again be called upon to die in foreign lands.

Public schools had special programs, public offices were closed and men of the American Legion continued with plans for the annual parade at 7:30 p. m. If there is a break in the weather and the rain ceases for even a short time, Sam Fox, general chairman, said the parade would march.

If it is raining, however, at the designated hour, the parade will be called off and the scheduled program held at 8 p. m.

At 11 a. m. today—the exact hour at which the World war armistice was signed 22 years ago—Legionnaires set off bombs at Central park, and women of the Legion auxiliary placed a wreath at the foot of the Doughboy monument in the park.

The speaker tonight at the Legion home will be Judge C. H. Huston, officer of the World war who was in command of Mansfield's Company M, and who will talk to men eligible to be called to selective service training within the next six months. The possible draftees will be guests of the Legion at a reception following the parade.

Judge Huston also spoke at 10:30 a. m. to the students at Springfield township school in Ontario.

At Senior high school the boys who attended the Legion's Boys State this past summer had charge of the program, and at West Fifth street school Attorney J. H. Gongwer talked on "Patriotism" early this afternoon. Every school in the city was to observe a period of silence at 11 a. m.

Australia Says German Mine Sank American Ship.

MELBOURNE, Australia—(U.P.)—The Australian naval intelligence service announced today that it had established "beyond a doubt" that a mine "of enemy origin" was responsible for the sinking of the American freighter City of Rayville off the Australian coast Friday night.

Intelligence officers said a similar mine had sunk an unidentified British freighter in Australian waters the same night.

Australian authorities said that several mines of "enemy origin" had been found on the beaches of Bass strait. Warships and planes are searching for the raider sowing the mines.

Five Hundred Wait Go Signal In Annual Red Cross Drive

An army of more than 500 men and women of Mansfield and Richland county today awaited the green light signal from the Red Cross to launch the annual roundup of members.

That signal will be given tonight at the Roll Call dinner at Senior high cafeteria, and tomorrow workers will start the work of canvassing every home in Mansfield and the county. With a minimum membership goal of 10,500, workers will work more determinedly than ever, realizing the need this year for increased support for the work of the Red Cross.

The drive extends through the remainder of the month. Hundreds of Roll Call posters have been put on display through the county and Mansfield theaters are all showing a 100-foot Red Cross film. Wayne Williams is in charge of this phase of Roll Call work. Workers in uniform will be in theater lobbies to give information on Red Cross work.

Mother, She Differ on Weddings

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Very often it's necessary to be firm for what we know is right, even if it does bring tears to those we love. The following letter was written by a young woman who wants to forego a large wedding so she can have a nice home.

"DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

"Will you please help me with my problem? Mother and I don't seem to agree on my wedding. I want the very simplest home wedding possible—wearing a good fall suit, with accessories to match, and inviting only my closest friends.

"My mother is holding out for all the frills of the day she was married. Hers and dad's wedding took a couple of years to pay for, afterward. I'd rather put that money into my new home which also suits my fiance.

"In these days, young people are different. I became acquainted with my fiance at an evening class. We had office jobs which kept us busy during the day, and we both decided that perhaps some commercial law would help us get raises. So we happened to pick the same night school. We met and, in due course, fell in love. Now we are going to be married and hope to make a go of it.

"Mother wants to wear white with a veil and all the fixings, have a wedding breakfast, etc. She is a swell little mother, but we just don't agree on this question.

"I hate to go against her wishes, but if I have a big wedding it will mean a lot of money, and all my plans for a home will go up in smoke. We had planned so many nice little things and had our decorating plans for the room all worked out. Shall I be hardboiled and not pay attention to mother's tears?

"GRETCHEN."

Many young couples, starting out in these days, prefer not to have as spectacular a wedding as they used to have in days gone by. Then a girl was often given what was called a "show wedding" to illustrate the social standing and prosperity of her family.

These large weddings of pre-war and boom days often crimped a family financially long after the elaborate trousseau was worn out or old-fashioned. And, tragically, enough, it sometimes represented a case of "all dressed up and no place to go."

In the roseate glow of courtship, the office promotion which seemed so certain and the salary which seemed ample somehow didn't quite perform the miracle. Yet families went on crippling themselves to give girls big and expensive weddings because they felt such investments paid in social and financial dividends.

You, my dear Gretchen, are to be married; not your mother. You are wise to decide on the home instead of the white dress and veil and wedding breakfast. I doubt if you and Bob—no matter what prosperity awaits you—will ever be happier than when you are planning and decorating your new home.

Be patient and wait until mamma is in a good humor, and then break the news to her that you want to remember your wedding with the same degree of happiness with which she remembers her own. Tell her that weddings these days, especially for bread-winning girls, have grown to be very simple affairs. A little nest-egg saved is better than a trousseau in the wardrobe.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

Dicky and I exchanged dismayed glances at Katie's message. Lillian must have calculated the time of Dicky's journey down almost to a minute, and believing that I would read the letter she had sent me, as soon as he should give it to me, she had waited only a minimum number of minutes before calling me to know my opinion of it. And because of our inconsequential chatter, we had not yet finished reading it!

I recovered my breath with the knowledge that I must talk to Lillian, and palliate as best I could, the delay which I was afraid she would construe as indifference. She evidently was in a most parlous state over this letter.

"Tell her, Katie," I said, "that I will come to the telephone directly."

"Never mind, Katie," Dicky said easily. "I'll deliver the message. Do you go back to your pancakes or biscuits or whatever you're fixing for dinner."

"O-oh! Meester Graham," she giggled. "You slay me dead, you sooch a foony man!"

"Thank you, Katie." He bowed from the waist, and Katie rushed away, still giggling.

He waited only until she was out of earshot before voicing the device for placating Lillian which he evidently had been formulating.

"I'll rush over and hold Lil with some excuse or other while you finish reading the letter," he said. "When you finish, come over quickly, and don't let anybody hold you up. I'll give you the low down on what I've told her before you talk to her. I'd tell you now, only I don't know yet myself what I'm going to tell her. Incidentally, you might supply our Katie with a few up-to-date slang expressions."

"She likes the moth-eaten ones—and we all like to hear her say them," I said, and he sent a "Right you are," over his shoulder as he hurried away.

I picked up the letter again, and ran through the rest of it hurriedly, and then read it once more, before rising to follow Dicky. Thanks to the rigid training of my little mother, so long gone from me, I am able to memorize things readily, and I was confident that I would not need to refer to its contents when I should talk to Lillian. But, as I walked across the terrace and into the house, I could not help repeating Helena Brixton's first hysterical query—"Whatever has happened?"

"You know, Lillian," the letter had continued, "that you and I agreed it simply wouldn't do to let Marion and Ronald consider themselves formally engaged. But we might as well have saved our breath. They've both been looking forward to getting married as soon as they finished college, and I'm not so sure they haven't sometimes thought it would be better to quit college and get jobs and get married. Ronald was so happy, it just stuck out all over him.

"But something pretty terrible must have happened this last month. Ronald's letters have been so queer and short, and he never mentioned Marion at all. And when he came home this week for the first time in two months, I almost fainted from the shock of seeing him look so awful, so white and thin and worn. He wasn't like himself at all. He just sat and stared into space. And when I asked him about Marion, he jumped up and said so bitterly:—'Mother, please, don't say anything to me about Marion ever again. It's all off.'

"He's home on sick leave, the physician say he isn't fit to study, and you know how high his marks were, and how proud he was of them. But he seems to have lost every bit of ambition he ever had. He asked his father the other day if he could get him a job a thousand miles from New York. Sam didn't tell me for almost a day, because he knew I'd worry so. Sam and I are just sick over it. All our hopes gone glimmering. And I'm terribly afraid underneath, that Ronald may do something terrible if he continues to be as desperate as he appears to be now.

"I've tried to sound Carolyn out. I wrote her and telephoned her. But all the consolation I got was a lot of vague talk about 'things would be all right' and 'not to worry. Ron would snap out of it.' She said too, that after all Marion had a right to make her own decisions.

"Please, Lil, write me back immediately, and tell me all you know about this thing. I'm nearly crazy.

"Love, Helena."

My steps grew slower and slower as I neared the telephone. As Dicky saw me, he spoke rapidly into the mouthpiece, and I saw that his face was very grave.

"Here she is, Lil," he said, and then he put down the receiver and hurried to me before I could pick it up, and putting his lips close to my ear, whispered

"Brace yourself! Marion has disappeared!"

HOROSCOPE

For Tuesday, Nov. 12.

Under the urge of the predominant astral influences there may be an irresistible impulse to do strange, untried and extraordinary things. This may be in the direction of launching experimental projects of bold or unusual scope, or there may be an indomitable urge to do old things in original, novel or perhaps revolutionary ways. Such efforts may prove to be workable, practical and constructive, providing such impulse be not carried to extremes, or the attempts be not reckless, wayward or tempestuous.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves in a year of surprising progress and achievement through the application of fresh or novel projects or new, original or even radical ways of speeding up old or static situations. But use practical common sense for productive results and not fantastic, erratic or spectacular methods.

A child born on this day may be willful, erratic, obstinate and impulsive, although having fine initiative and creative talent. Its desire for novelty and fresh adventure may carry it to extremes.

Preparing For Big Date

By MME. QUI VIVE

Is life just one terrific rush-around? To most of us it seems to be that way, whether one is earning the wherewithal to pay the landlord and the grocer or whether one is pleasure bent. What we seem not to have is a breathing spell. Clock hands whirl around and it's time to pile into bed again.

The result of all this is that we see tired, tense faces that should activity, not enough sleep, casual look fresh and radiant. Too much eating habits maybe. Women who don't take proper care of themselves, who break the laws of health, do not shine at the gay evening party. They wilt like flowers that need the refreshing rain. They age before their time.

If you are a rush-arounder and have the big date and want to appear your very best, give yourself one full hour or more for resting and dressing. Don't fancy you can have a full day of shopping and social engagements and look like anything that would win a beauty prize when the evening party breaks up. Can't be done. You are not made of wires and fiddle strings; you are made of flesh, bones and blood that suffer from exhaustion.

Begin with a warm, soap bath, scouring with a heavy brush. Yawping nerves will be hushed, tired fibers will relax. Finish with a cold shower and a brisk rubdown.

Before you have got into the tub you have, of course, removed make-up with a thin cream or cleansing oil, swept away the current film of nail polish, tucked your sacred ringlets under a shower cap.

Out comes the precious perfume atomizer to spray floretted odors upon neck, chest and arms. You will feel like a princess born with a gold spoon in her mouth. A dusting powder of the same scent will give your flesh a smooth, satiny feel. The powder should be kept in a large container with a whale of a lamb's wool pad for its application, or an old-fashioned fluttery puff of eiderdown. So far, so good.

Wring a cloth out of ice cold water, place over the eyes and revel in thirty minutes of delicious limpness. You are picking up your tangled threads now, and straightening them out. You are clearing your mind of all bothersome thoughts, preparing for the merry evening and a joyous state of mind as befits the merry-maker.

Now for makeup. A foundation cosmetic is a help; it makes the factory blushes stick and powder stay put. If you use a creamy foundation, friction it in until it disappears. When the complexion is inclined to be oily a tonic lotion is to be preferred.

If you employ a rouge compact, powder first, apply rouge, powder again, blending carefully. Chuck the rough if you go in for eye shadows. Use brilliantine on the eyebrows, applying it with a small brush; it's a nice idea to swish it along the forward hairline.

Coiffure arranged, new nail veneer applied, into the grand dry goods and away you go. Have a grand time.

"The Authority on Authorities"

THE FOE HAS AN ENTRY

How often we have all established some winners in dummy which are useless to us because no entry is left to get at them! On rare occasions, when no other play for the contract is in sight, we can make the opponents help us out. Careful counting of the cards as they fall may show that one of the defenders will have to lead right into the winning card or cards in the dummy if we throw the lead into his hand.

As it developed, 4-Spades would have been easy to make on this deal, if North had tried that bid over the 3-No Trumps. At the latter contract South has work to do. West led the heart Q to the K, and South's case is pretty hopeless unless he can score a couple of spade tricks. So he won the opener with the heart K and led the spade 5 to the K. East let that win, but had to take the J, on which South threw a club. West won the heart return with the J, cashed his A, then put South in with the 6 to the 8.

Seeking some kind of a break, South played his two top diamonds, then the club A. When the J fell on this, he saw a ray of hope. It grew brighter when the K dropped the Q. To confirm his idea, he played the diamond Q. With nothing left but the diamond 7 and club 6, he led the diamond, hoping the winner of that trick would also have a spade left for his last card. That is exactly what happened.

West won that twelfth trick with the diamond J, but had nothing left except the spade 10, which he had to lead to dummy's Q, giving declarer the game trick. The elements of this play are just two—the defender who wins a particular late trick must have nothing left in his hand except one or more cards of a suit in which the dummy or declarer has one or more winners which he could not reach otherwise.

Tomorrow's Problem.

Economy Cut Aids Budgets

By BETSY NEWMAN

Comes a time in every woman's life when the budget is at low ebb. She must feed her family, but on very little money. This is the time to turn to the inexpensive cuts of meat and realize that they are as good in flavor and much lower in cost — than the steaks, chops, etc., she has been using. It isn't so much what you cook—if it is good of its kind—but how you cook and flavor it.

Today's Menu.

Boiled Beef Brisket with Horseradish Sauce
Baked Sweet Potatoes
Chopped Cabbage with Sour Cream Dressing
Coffee Chocolate Cake Coffee

* * *

Boiled Beef Brisket.

4 lbs. beef brisket
½ cup turnips
2 thin slices salt pork
1 large onion
Celery leaves
Salt
Pepper
½ cup carrots

Dice carrots and turnips. Wipe beef with damp cloth, dredge with flour, brown in fat made from frying salt pork. Place meat in large pan, surround with vegetables and add 3 cups boiling water. Cover and cook in slow oven for 3 hours, basting every 30 minutes. Turn meat twice during cooking, but do not pierce with fork.

Horseradish Sauce.

2 tbsps. horseradish
1 egg yolk
½ tsp. sugar
½ tsp. French or prepared mustard
1½ tbsps. white vinegar
½ cup whipped cream
Salt
Pepper

Add all other ingredients, one at a time to grated horseradish, stirring well after each addition. Serve cold over hot meat.

* * *

Coffee Chocolate Cake.

3 sqs. unsweetened chocolate
¾ cup strong hot coffee
½ cup white corn syrup
½ cup shortening
1 cup sugar
3 eggs
1 tsp. vanilla extract
1¾ cups pastry flour
3 tsps. baking powder
¼ tsp salt.

Melt chocolate with hot coffee, add corn syrup, mixing well until mixture thickens, cool. Cream shortening, add sugar slowly, beating in well. Add unbeaten eggs one at a time, beating well after each addition, then add vanilla. Sift dry ingredients together, add alternately with cold chocolate mixture to cake mixture. Bake in 2 greased layer cake pans in 350 F. oven for about 35 minutes. Frost with favorite frosting.

THEATERS

Timely Background.

The background of "Arise, My Love" is set against that of the present conditions in Europe, Claudette Colbert is cast as a hard-hitting newspaper woman, and Ray Milland, a fighting aviator. They meet when she rescues him from a Spanish firing squad. Winding across France, England, and half-way over the ocean, the story follows the pattern of their adventures to arrive at an intensely emotional climax with their return to France.

Deanna Dances and Sings.

For the first time in the three-year screen career of Deanna Durbin, she will be seen doing specialty dances on the screen in "Spring Parade." One number is a wild-folk dance, performed with Mischa Auer. Another is the beautiful Viennese waltz, which she dances with her leading man, Robert Cummings. This feature and "The Leatherpushers" are playing at the Madison. The latter features Richard Arlen and Andy Devine.

Streamlined Comedy.

Carol Landis is co-starred with John Hubbard in the new streamlined comedy "Turnabout" which is showing at the Ritz. The plot concerns the high jinks produced when the young couple exchange sexes. Second attraction is "When the Daltons Rode," with Kay Francis and Randolph Scott in the leads. Kay is cast as a winsome telegraph operator of Coffeyville, a character based on the real-life sweetheart of one of the Dalton boys.

International Setting.

"Next Time We Love," the feature at the Park, has an international background. The picture opens in New York. Then the scene changes to Russia, Siberia, China, Rome and the Tyrolean Alps. Margaret Sullavan, James Stewart and Ray Milland have the leads in this realistic and human drama. Second feature is "Home on the Prairie" with Gene Autry in the lead.

STARCH PLANTS REACHING PEAK

PRESQUE ISLE, Me.—(U.P.)—Co-operating in the Federal starch diversion program, 21 Aroostook county starch factories are working to capacity, using approximately 13,000 barrels of No. 2 potatoes daily.

The county plants are producing 95 per cent of the nation's starch supply.

Several other plants may be reopened to meet the starch demand. Except for a factory in New Orleans and one in Minnesota, northern Maine contains all the starch manufacturing facilities in the nation.

GEORGE SEEN IN PITTMAN POST

Southern Senator Expected To Succeed Stricken Nevadan on Vital Committee.

ator's death. Secretary Hull, with whom Pittman worked closely on matters of foreign affairs, said he was "grieved and distressed beyond measure." Colleagues and associates likewise voiced their sorrow.

Sen. Pat Harrison (D-Miss.) is the ranking foreign relations committee member, but for him to take the post would mean relinquishing chairmanship of the equally important senate finance committee. Harrison indicated promptly that he intended to retain his finance chairmanship and —since no senator may head two committees — this decision made George the No 1 man.

A soft-spoken Georgian, George is a long-time friend and confidant of Secretary Hull. He is also one of the members of congress whose re-election encountered presidential opposition in the 1938 campaign—a fact which did not encourage relations between George and Mr. Roosevelt.

Despite George's disapproval of some of the administration's domestic program, he has given his support generally to Mr. Roosevelt's foreign policies.

The entire membership of the senate was invited to the Pittman funeral Thursday and a special committee probably will be appointed. The house will be represented by a committee of 20.

Pay Last Respects To Senator Pittman

RENO, Nov — (INS) — Hosts of friends and admirers, including the nation's leading statesmen, prepared today to pay their last respects to U. S. Senator Key Pittman.

Funeral services will be held in Reno's municipal auditorium Thursday afternoon to allow time for the senator's friends and colleagues from Washington and other sections of the east to arrive.

Rev. Warren Botkin, rector of the Episcopal church, will officiate at the services, following which the body will be placed in a receiving vault until Mrs. Mumosa Gates Pittman, the senator's widow, decides whether burial will be in Nevada, Washington D. C., or in the senator's native state of Mississippi.

Gov. E. P Carville said he will not appoint Senator Pittman's successor until after the funeral. Political circles meanwhile prominently mentioned as a likely appointee James G. Scrugham, Nevada's veteran and lone congressman who, like Pittman, was re-elected on the Democratic ticket last Tuesday.

MISS LOUISE McFARLAND

When the 1941 Gasco Food Institute is presented here Nov. 13, 14, 15, on the stage of Ohio Theater cooking demonstrations will be in capable and experienced hands. Heading the staff of food specialists who compose the 'cast' of the "Cook's Carnival" as this year's Institute program is called is Miss Louise McFarland as food lecturer.

This is the third season for Miss McFarland with the Gasco Food Institute. She will be well remembered by many Mansfield housewives who have seen her in previous performances of this popular food event here.

In addition to her experience and knowledge of home economics problems, she has an extremely pleasing stage personality which makes her cooking demonstrations most entertaining as well as informative.

This year's version of the Gasco Food Institute, the "Cook's Carnival," presents an entirely new and different series of cooking demonstration, mixed with sparkling entertainment which establishes it as the year's most novel cooking school.

Hunt 'Friend' In Mysterious Murder of Clevelander

POLICE JUGGLE QUEER PIECES OF EVIDENCE

Believe Man Was 'Rubbed Out' But Fail to Uncover Gang Connections.

(By Associated Press)

WARREN—Amid a maze of odd puzzle pieces which did not seem to fit, officers sought today a "friend" of John J. Sivillo, 26, of Cleveland, to help put together the picture of his apparent gang-killing.

Sivillo told his family he had an appointment with this "friend" at 7 p. m. Friday. Sivillo's bullet-riddled body was found Saturday in his automobile on Route 90, near the Youngstown-Warren airport.

Cleveland police questioned an ex-convict who had quarreled with Sivillo over an automobile deal but he denied any knowledge of the slaying and his release was expected.

Both Warren and Cleveland authorities worked on the theory that Sivillo was "rubbed out" by gangsters but they had no evidence whether the gang's "angle was slotmachines or something entirely different," as Detective Sergt. John Mack of Cleveland said.

Among the odd puzzle pieces were these: two three-weeks-old bullet wounds in Sivillo's body along with six fresh ones; failure of his wife and children to know of them; a Spanish-type pistol found near the slaying scene; proof that this pistol did not fire the fatal bullets; failure to find the three bullets which had been fired from it.

Sivillo had been working as a truck driver for the state highway department. He turned his pay over regularly to his wife but kept his most recent one, telling her he "had to pay a fellow some money."

Mack said "it is logical to surmise there was a gang connection. Sivillo must have had some business near Warren. Gang killers wouldn't have had to take him that far (from Cleveland).

Sheriff Roy Hardman said "it is possible that Sivillo was chased out to the spot (on the road) in his own car before the gang caught up with him."

Shortly after his quarrel with the ex-convict, Sivillo was arrested for carrying liquor illegally in his automobile. He served a three-months sentence. Sivillo also had served a term in Mansfield reformatory for attempted robbery in 1932.

Up and Down THE STREET

The season is over for most Mansfield golf players—but not for Art Fovarque, jr., out at Coolridge Country club. Art, assistant manager of the club, has been working every day getting things into shape for the winter season. He expects to have the work completed this week and will leave on a vacation trip. Art spent considerable time fixing the greens and doing chores inside the clubhouse.

Jane Wilson, Mansfield songstress with Fred Waring's band, is now being featured on all of his stage and personal appearances, and Saturday night she was one of the entertainers for the Washington Press club's dinner for President Roosevelt, along with the Waring Glee club, Fritz Kreisler and Alec Templeton. Only two members on the program brought the assemblage to its feet in appreciation and that was a Kreisler number and Jane's song "Alice Blue Gown," according to Washington papers. This was Jane's second appearance before the president as she sang two years ago at Vice President Garner's cabinet dinner. When she was presented this time the famous Roosevelt memory placed her instantly.

Mansfielders who were in the Y. M. C. A. Saturday and were alarmed over the furore in Ralph Champan's office can rest easily. It was only Harold Dysart, 498 Parkview street, captain of one of the membership drive teams, giving vent to his emotions. After trying for some time to get tickets for the Michigan-Ohio State game in Columbus Nov. 23, Dysart was handed two of the ducats free as a prize for signing up the most members during the campaign and apparently just couldn't keep himself under control.

There are no strained relations between Mansfield business men and officials of the Mitsubish Electric Manufacturing company in Tokyo, Japan. Several weeks ago a delegation from the Japanese firm came here to visit the Westinghouse plant. Westinghouse officials gave a breakfast for them and invited a number of business leaders in the city. This morning the local guests received letters from G. Kawai, chairman of the Japanese firm, thanking them for their courtesy and telling them how much he enjoyed meeting them. Kawai took their names at the breakfast party.

WEEKEND LOOT TOTALS $100

Thieves Snatch Purse, Take Money From Register In Petty Crimes.

Sneak thieves were busy over the week-end, using pick-pocket methods, purse snatching, and robbery to acquire more than $100 in loot, according to police reports today.

Wilson I. Cochran, 103 West Fourth street, was the victim of a pick-pocket at a local theater Saturday evening. A man brushing against him in the inner lobby is suspected of taking his billfold containing $20 in cash.

Ida Zediker, 318 Wood street, told police her purse was stolen Saturday evening while she was shopping at a North Main street store. She said she had laid her purse on the counter for a minute and while she looked away some one snatched it. It contained $5 in cash and a check for $11.95.

Ray Ling, proprietor of a gas station at Third and Diamond, reported that $19.09 was taken out of his cash register by a customer while the attendant was busy.

Less subtle methods were used by the two men who robbed Roy Zwilling, 22½ South Park street of a watch valued at $50 Saturday night. Taking him out of a North Main street cafe they took his watch by force, threatened to cut off his finger to get a diamond ring, and beat him up, according to his story to police. They didn't get the ring. Zwilling said he knew one of his assailants, and would file charges tomorrow.

Russell Lumbert, R. D. 4, told police that some one had stolen the wheel and tire off his parked car early Saturday evening when he left it on North Franklin just below Fourth street.

WILLKIE OUTLINES COURSE FOR G.O.P. IN BROADCAST TONIGHT

(By United Press)

NEW YORK—Wendell L. Willkie tonight answers a question put by many of his 22,000,000 supporters in last week's election: "What are we to do now, Mr. Willkie?"

From 10:30 to 11 p. m. (Mansfield time) on time donated by the networks, he will outline the course he believes the Republican opposition should follow. He will speak from his personal campaign headquarters in the Commodore hotel.

Willkie is expected to counsel his party to cooperate with the administration's defense and in giving all short-of-war aid to Britain, but to act as a check against undue assumption of power.

The defeated Republican nominee spent yesterday at his Fifth avenue home, working on his speech. In the afternoon, he went to his hotel headquarters to read more of the 30,000 letters and telegrams received since the vote was counted.

The letters, his associates said, are mostly in the same vein; they ask advice. Some ask him to refuse any federal appointment that is offered him. Others urge him to form a strong opposition party.

Willkie and Mrs. Willkie will leave Wednesday or Thursday for Rushville, Ind., where they own five farms. They expect to go south later for a two or three-week vacation.

Nine Die In Ohio Traffic; Area Escapes

ONE ACCIDENT, NO DEATHS ARE REPORTED HERE

Willard Residents Injured Near Lexington, Ky., on Trip Through South.

With no fatalities and only one accident reported, Mansfield and the Richland county area had what state patrolmen called one of its safest week-ends in nearly a year Saturday and Sunday as at least nine persons lost their lives in traffic accidents in other parts of the state.

Sole accident in the area happened Saturday on Route 13, four miles north of Mansfield, when three automobiles collided. Nine persons were slightly injured and treated by physicians.

En route to Oklahoma, Mr. and Mrs. William Thurber and their daughter, Mrs. Goldie Bergstresser, all of Willard, were injured near Lexington, Ky., when the automobile in which they were riding skidded and turned over. All three were taken to a Lexington hospital.

Most seriously injured was William Thurber, driver of the car, who sustained internal injuries. Mrs. Thurber was treated for a broken leg and Mrs. Bergstresser for multiple lacerations.

Those who died of injuries received in traffic accidents in Ohio over the week-end were:

CLEVELAND — Four-year-old daughter of Mrs. Lillian Willis, in a collision; William Bucholzer, 42, in head-on crash; Frank N. Brown, 45, struck by automobile in suburban North Royalton.

GALLIPOLIS — A. R. McFarland, 85, of Jackson, in crash; Mrs. C. E. Houck, 56, of Bladen, in two-car collision.

XENIA—John W. Smith, 61, hit as he pushed a cart in street.

VAN WERT—Arthur Krebs of Westfield, Pa., in automobile-truck crash; Mrs. M. M. Hinton of crash injuries received Oct. 31. Mrs. Hinton was the mother of Walter Hinton who in May, 1919, piloted the NC-4 on the first transatlantic flight by heavier-than-air craft.

NORWALK—Roland T. Frost, 52, of Cleveland, when his automobile overturned.

The Voice of BROADWAY

—By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

Speaking For Myself.

I'd love to see Elsa Maxwell skating in the Rockefeller Rink (when it's iced) in a Sonja Henie-ish costume. . . . As the nation's No. 1 Cole Porter fan—one who curtseyed when "Night and Day" was played and bumped her head on the floor for tunes like "Love for Sale"—I feel that it is my stern, if unpleasant, duty to report that I thought the score of "Panama Hattie" was unworthy of the composer of "You're the Top."

The tunes lacked the wonderful "mood" that used to make Porter songs so haunting — the lyrics lacked the wonderful chromium glitter that always made Porter songs seem a year ahead of their time. And it hurts me more than it hurts him.

I think the new Stage magazine is swell—and certainly it was What Broadway Needs . . . I cannot imagine why a man would want to grow a mustache, and I wish that, if I have a mustached reader, he write and tell me the reason for his bearded upper lip.

When I think of things that are truly American I think of orange juice for breakfast, ice in highballs, soap in bath-tubs, and "Kill the bum!" at ball games . . . I guess November is the month of the axe—first the politicians get it, then the turkey . . . I like to go to sleep with a radio on in the room.

Never saw any magazine as fast as News-Week was in getting out an issue crammed with election "inside" . . . Glad to see Diosa Costello back in LaConga. She's always good for several thousand volts of electricity . . . I have discovered that orange juice with a ball of vanilla ice cream in it tastes delicious.

I think the only place to spend Thanksgiving is home with the family. I once spent Thanksgiving in a Camden, N. J., hotel where I was covering a murder case. Nothing could be more depressing than eating your turkey alone in a hotel dining room. I called the city editor to tell him what was happening on the story and he said:

"I wish you could see me. I am surrounded by my wife and children, and I have just stuffed myself with home cooking. I am very happy and contented. Now are you still glad you decided to be a reporter?"

I once made a bet with myself that I couldn't spend 15 minutes in Sardi's without seeing at least one actress rush up to another, embrace her, cheek-to-cheek, and shriek, "Da-a-a-rling!" I won the bet.

I guess John Ford will never make a picture without a rain-soaked street, a pipe-smoking fellow against a mist, a blind man singing, a silent scuffle in the dark. Any more than Ernst Lubitsch will ever make a film without a shot of a champagne cork popping.

I wish Benny Goodman would play his Mozart concertos wearing a wig and ruffled pants just to convince his more staid audiences that there's no danger he'll break into "Sing Sing Sing" in the middle of the second movement.

Soap box orators always amaze me. I've never been able to understand what makes crowds gather around a couple of guys named Joe who want to air their views on a street corner.

Nothing on earth could induce me to eat Bird's Nest Soup . . . I haven't seen a magazine all week that didn't contain an article by William Saroyan about William Saroyan.

I never talked to a taxi-dancer who didn't resent being called a taxi-dancer. They all want to be known as "dance hostesses."

I'd love to see Katharine Cornell in the Theater Guild's new play, "Marie Adelaide."

Most show girls are prettier off stage than on. On the stage they're inclined to all look alike. . . . I cannot understand what would make a man buy a lavender-colored shirt . . . I think the cheeriest person on Broadway is Tommy Manville. Sometimes when he talks he chirps.

I like the way Spivy introduces her silliest ditties with: "Now this is a sad song and you must be very quiet" . . . I am floored by people who put salt on watermelon and sugar on tomatoes . . . I love to sit next to Damon Runyon at an opening night and get on the receiving end of his comments about the people.

Most heart-rending sight in El Morocco on election night was Jerry Zerbe, who sat draped over the bar moaning:

"I've never worn my Willkie button, because I thought it was such a so-so thing to do. But tomorrow, I shall begin wearing it!"

Most regal evening cloak I've seen this year is being worn around the Rainbow Room by the lovely wife of Dr. Serge Voronoff, the famous Viennese gland surgeon. Madame Voronoff's protection from the chilly night breezes is an ermine coat that sweeps the floor as she walks and is lined with sable!

I just can't bear to think of Jimmy Stewart going off to war . . . Never realized, until I saw her sitting on a piano, that Jane Pickens had such pretty legs. Who's Dietrich?

Bandleaders without song pluggers around them look positively undressed. I saw Woody Herman unmolested in Lindy's the other day and he looked as if he'd forgotten part of his apparel.

Most intriguing story of the draft, for my money, was the item about the 40 midgets who registered. I wonder if the Army is going to use them for making small gains?

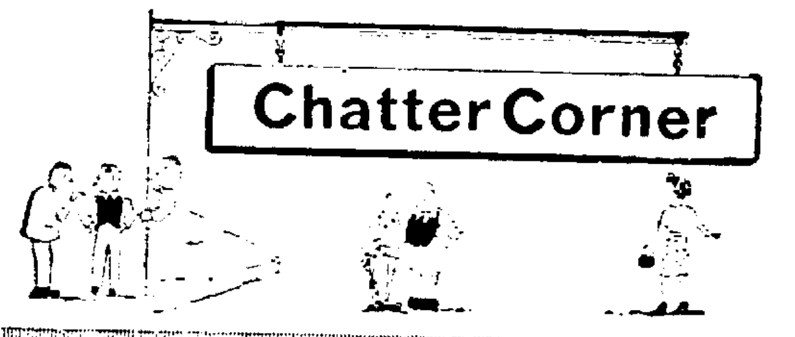
I get mad when I hear Broadwayites say about a 24-year-old chorine, "Oh, but she's OLD — she's been around for years." So has Billy Gaxton, but he's still terrific . . . There ought to be a law against Welsh rarebits in night clubs—they're almost as bad as big black cigars! . . . I wonder what ever became of those coiffure abominators known as "sculptured curls?"



(Just jottings about people you know, as they're seen here and there about town.)

The Charles E. Nails and the Ephraim Browns at dinner at the Fairway Saturday night and celebrating a wedding anniversary . . . but whose? . . . Friends of young Louis Ott giggling over his new nickname, "Slugger" but refusing to tell how he acquired it. . .

* * *

Herb and Corinne Schettler and Dr. and Mrs. O. H. Schettler having Sunday night dinner at the new Eureka Supper club. Corinne still excited over the Community Players selling 730 season tickets this year, and Herb telling one of his well known stories with gestures . . .

* * *

Among the lovelier dresses at the Rainbow dance Saturday night was an aqua jacket dress, embroidered in silver, worn by Mrs. F. C. Davis and a stiff, white silk with old fashioned bodice and sweeping skirt worn by Mrs. C. C. Flood . . .

* * *

Armistice day flags soaked by the rain, waving in the strong wind . . . Patrolman Howard Schuck taking time out to shake the water out of his coat under an awning . . . Clarence Herrick bustling along Main street.

* * *

Walter Perl looking prosperous as he cruised around yesterday in a new automobile . . . Harold Kramer and wife back in town for a few days . . . Bill Kurtz and Bob Culler telling about getting lost in Cleveland . . .

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. S. R. Baird dining in an Ashland road restaurant. . . . Al Arnold rounding a windy corner wearing one of those new knee-length top coats . . . Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Creveling braving the rain to attend church services.

Carbetta Determined to Win Athletic Club Boxing Bout

Unbeaten Clubs Continue to Face Tough Tilts

Stanford, Minnesota, Cornell Meet Dangerous Rivals Saturday.

NEW YORK—(AP)—It takes persistence as well as power to win recognition as champion in any of the big football conferences and as a contender for the mythical national title.

Minnesota, which might easily choose to rest on the laurels won in successive one-point victories over Northwestern and Michigan, runs into Purdue next. That should be a comparatively easy assignment although the Boilermakers gave Fordham a real scrap Saturday before losing 13-7.

Cornell, the east's ranking power, found Yale stubborn but won 21-0. This week it's Dartmouth and the Indians won't give up without a struggle.

* * *

Stanford virtually clinched the Pacific coast conference title by beating Washington 20-10. Still there's no assurance that Oregon State won't make trouble this week.

The mighty Texas Aggies beat Southern Methodist 19-7, but that only sent them on to meet Rice, 14-7 winner over Arkansas.

In addition to this "Big Four" the nation's list of unbeaten and untied "major" teams includes Boston College, Georgetown, Notre Dame, Tennessee and Hardin-Simmons.

Michigan was the week's important casualty and the Wolverines' 7-6 loss to Minnesota didn't take much away from their rating.

Penn State, held to a 13-13 draw by Syracuse, Mississippi State and Texas Tech have been tied but not beaten.

Saturday's Boston College-Georgetown game should settle the question of whether these two teams belong in the same class with Cornell. B. C. ran over Boston University 21-0 and Georgetown swamped Maryland 41-0.

Fordham, Duquesne, a 7-6 winner over St. Mary's of California yesterday, and Brown, which downed Army 13-9, rank well up among the once-beaten teams. The first two are idle this week while Brown meets Harvard, which produced one of last Saturday's biggest surprises by holding Pennsylvania to a 10-10 tie.

The meeting between those ancient rivals, Yale and Princeton, heads a list of games of traditional importance which includes Syracuse-Colgate, Columbia-Navy, Holy Cross-Temple and Pittsburgh-Nebraska.

Michigan and Northwestern clash in the standout game of the Western conference with second place as the stake. Injuries struck Northwestern hard in winning over Illinois, 32-14. Notre Dame, which had another hard afternoon beating Navy, 13-7, meets Iowa, 14-6 loser to Nebraska. Illinois faces Ohio State and Indiana, 20-0 winner over Michigan State, tackles Wisconsin, 7-6 victim of Columbia.

Oklahoma, 13-0 winner over Kansas, and Missouri, which whipped Colorado 21-6, fight it out for second place in the Big Six.

Marquette, beaten 15-11 by Manhattan in last week's wildest game, takes on Michigan State while Detroit, which picked up prestige with a 7-0 victory over Texas Christian, plays Gonzaga on the west coast.

Kentucky, after its 26-7 win over Georgia Tech, encounters West Virginia.

In the Southern circuit Duke beat Davidson 26-13 to gain a tie with Clemson for first place and can take the lead this week by whipping North Carolina. The Tar Heels lost to Richmond 14-13 last week.

Still hoping for the Texas Aggies to crack and give them a chance, Southern Methodist's Mustangs play Arkansas and Texas Christian meets Texas, victor over Baylor 13-0.

Utah pulled past Colorado into the lead Saturday with a 31-7 decision over Wyoming and will try to hold it against Colorado State, 13-12 winner over Utah State.

SPORTS PARADE

By HENRY McLEMORE

DALLAS—(UP)—On a man whose hair is beating a strategic retreat toward the nape of his neck, and whose blood pressure is two notches higher than that of a cobra in high anger, John Kimbrough furnishes quite a thrill.

* * *

He is all of the man all of us would like to be.

He has the size, the speed, the power, and the stamina that—well that you'd like to have just as much as I would.

Sixty minutes of punishing football is as nothing to Jarring John. I had my glasses on him when the final whistle of the Aggies—S. M. U. game sounded last Saturday and he looked downright sorry. The solid hour of bumping and banging and hammering and jolting hadn't affected him one bit.

He was dancing around on his toes when the finish came, handling his 222 pounds of muscle as if he were a ballet dancer. There was a grin on his face and for a moment I thought he might appeal to the officials to let the teams play a while longer just for the fun of rough, tough, physical contact.

Quite a football fellow, Kimbrough. The performance he put on in the third period of the Aggies game with the Mustangs gave him a place alongside the real champions in my book.

The score was tied at 7-7 when Kimbrough took the game into his own hands. The field was muddy and slippery, the S. M. U. defense was massed to meet him. But he asked for the ball and went to work. Seven times he rumbled and roared into the S. M. U. line. Seven times the enemy was thrown back by the mad drive of the big fellow.

* * *

Seven times they grounded him into the mud, and seven times he got up, laughing, and set off an another battering ram plunge. And on the seventh time he went over for a touchdown—the touchdown that put his team ahead 13 to 7 and really won the game for the Aggies and kept intact their winning streak that started the week after Thanksgiving in 1938.

Saturday 'Black Day' In Ohio Grid Season

By ROBERT OLDS

COLUMBUS —(UP)— If Ohio's 1940 college football season must have a "black Saturday," then let it go into the books as that dark day last Saturday.

* * *

For it came to pass on that day that:

* * *

1. Humble Akron rose from all the humiliation of a victoryless season to bring down Kent State from leadership in the Buckeye state and the greatest season ever known to the Golden Flashes, 23 to 7.

2. A lanky blond halfback named Dick Booth brought an end to Ohio U.'s undefeated season in a 42-yard touchdown gallop which brought Western Reserve a 6-0 triumph, leaving just Wittenberg and Wilberforce unbeaten in Ohio.

3. The Muskingum Muskies downed injury-riddled Heidelberg 19 to 0, thrusting the Student Princes to an outside lane in the Ohio conference race after pacing the league teams throughout the season.

4. Baldwin Wallace finally turned on the power heralded in pre-season dope to upset powerful Toledo 14 to 12.

5. The Cincinnati Bearcats, experiencing one of the strangest seasons in their history, held a highly favored West Virginia team to a 7-7 tie after upsetting Carnegie Tech 7-6 last week.

As another season draws rapidly to a close, seven Ohio elevens winding up their schedules last week and 11 more on Saturday, the Ohio conference race is almost as muddling as it was in September.

Five teams, Wittenberg, Case, Kent State, Heidelberg and Muskingum, remain as possible winners, but undefeated Wittenberg looks like the new champion. After marking up a 27-7 win over Marietta, the Lutherans counted five straight conference wins. Another triumph is almost certain Saturday against weak Mt. Union, a team which is seeing its poorest season in decades.

Should Ohio Northern defeat Heidelberg this week, and Kent State lose to Baldwin-Wallace, the [illegible] crown will be virtually [illegible] the grasp of the Lutherans. [illegible]

[illegible]

Mickey Mituga, the diminutive Kent State back, continued to set the pace with 51 points. He registered a single conversion against Akron.

Youngstown's Tony Aello was idle but held second place with 43 points. Fenton Wolfe, of Heidelberg and Toledo's Bob Nash remained tied in third place with 42.

Johnny Kostovo, Wittenberg's star, scored 13 points against Marietta, moving up to third spot with 37 points. Bill Moran, speedy Dayton back, scored another touchdown to share fifth place with Ohio State's Jim Langhurst and Dick Booth of Western Reserve.

Ohio State, after two weeks of rest, goes to Illinois in top form before meeting Michigan here in a final game. Other feature games among the 16 in which Buckeye elevens will be in action are Ohio U. at Dayton, Youngstown at Ohio Wesleyan, and Xavier at Marshall.

Harry Baujan's Dayton charges, carving out one of their best seasons, trimmed Xavier 13 to 0 for a fifth straight victory. Ohio Wesleyan, still suffering from an initial reversal by Xavier, was defeated 18 to 10 by Case.

Last week was one of close decisions. Wilberforce's great negro team remained unbeaten only because Kentucky State kickers failed in conversion attempts and Wilberforce won 13-12. Guard Hermanuck made two conversions to give Findlay a 14-12 win over West Liberty.

Miami failed to score from the one-foot line on the final play of the game, losing 20-17 to Western State Teachers for a sixth straight defeat.

Other results: John Carroll 21, Davis Elkins 7; Capital 32, Otterbein [illegible]; Denison 31, Oberlin 20; [illegible] 7; Kalamazoo 7; Kenyon 31, [illegible] 8; Bowling Green 2[illegible], Wooster 14; St. Marys [illegible]; [illegible] 0; Ohio Northern 20, M[illegible]; [illegible] Ashland 6, Rio Grande 0; De Sales 33, Lawrence Tech 7.

Defeats 'Super Team'

Detroit Club Turns Back Chicago In National Professional League.

By TOM SILER.

CHICAGO — (AP) — The Brooklyn Dodgers and Detroit Lions of the National football league seemingly don't know that the Chicago Bears were pro football's "super team" and the Dodgers evidently weren't aware that the Washington Redskins were unbeatable.

* * *

Disregarding their opponent's status, Detroit and Brooklyn added considerable confusion to the championship race Sunday when the Dodgers handed Washington its first defeat in eight games this season, 16 to 14, and the Lions hung a 17 to 14 defeat on the Bears.

* * *

Despite the loss Washington is a heavy favorite to qualify as the eastern division champion. The Bears held their western section lead with six wins in eight games, and have a one-game lead over Green Bay, the defending champions.

A crowd of 34,000 saw Sammy Baugh of Washington set a new league record of 23 completed passes but the Redskins were helpless on the ground, gaining only 19 yards.

Green Bay bounced back from a defeat by the Bears a week ago to whip the Chicago Cardinals 28 to 7.

Cleveland rolled over New York, 13 to 0, with Vic Spadaccini in the starring role.

Pittsburgh defeated Philadelphia 7 to 3.

The rampaging Columbus Bulls stayed atop the American professional football league.

They shoved across two touchdowns in the first two periods of yesterday's game with Buffalo to defeat the Indians 13 to 7. Second-place Milwaukee, meantime, was smothering New York 30 to 7.

* * *

The Boston-Cincinnati game scheduled for yesterday will be played instead today in Charleston, W. Va.

Takes Over High Scoring Honors

NEW YORK—(AP)—Jack Hunt, line-smashing fullback of Marshall college in West Virginia, personally scored five touchdowns in his team's victory over Detroit Tech last week-end to take over high individual scoring honors among the nation's footballers with a total of 114 points.

* * *

Hunt has crossed the opposition goal line 19 times in 8 games.

* * *

Tom Harmon of Michigan, leader most of the season up to now, failed to score in his team's defeat by Minnesota Saturday and dropped into a tie for second place among the sectional leaders with Charles Larson of Colver-Stockton, each with 87 points.

Shaughnessy Playoff Up For Vote

Baseball Men Will Try To Do Away With Method.

ATLANTA—(AP)—An effort to eliminate the Shaughnessy playoff as a means of determining minor league baseball championships will be made here Dec. 4 when the National Association of Professional Baseball leagues convenes.

* * *

Submitted by Houston of the Texas league, the amendment to the major-minor league rules would provide that:

"Except in cases where a split-season schedule is adopted with the championship being awarded to the winner of the post-season series between the winners of the respective halves of the split-season schedule, the club which has the highest percentage computed on a basis of games won and lost during the regularly adopted schedule must be declared champions of the league of which such club is a member."

Commenting on the proposal in his tentative agenda for the December meeting, W. G. Bramham, president-treasurer of the association, said it would eliminate award of the championship to the winner "of a so-called Shaughnessy series" and would recognize "the club which proves its superiority over the course of a full season."

A total of 24 rule amendments and three contract changes—most of them technical revisions—will be considered by the membership.

Paul Faces Test

Mike Stephens of Cleveland To Tangle With Mansfield Boy In Top Bout.

By CHARLES MARTIN
(News-Journal Sports Editor)

DETERMINED to build one of the best records ever compiled by a Mansfield amateur boxer, Paul Carbetta returns to his ring wars Wednesday night when he meets Mike Stephens in one of the feature bouts on the Saprano-Dochla Athletic club card at the club.

* * *

Carbetta, rated by many as the leading flyweight simon pures in this district, clashes with a dangerous opponent, but is out to stop the Clevelander.

* * *

In the other top match Nate Robertson, a welterweight from the Mansfield CCC camp, goes against Henry Moore, another Cleveland boy. Both matches are five-round affairs.

Joe Sauer, fast-improving Mansfield welterweight, will share a portion of the spotlight by meeting Bob Turner, a tough ringster hailing from Marion.

An old Mansfield favorite will also swing leather in another of the three-round melees. He is Mel McKinley, a featherweight, who formerly fought out of an Ashland stable.

McKinley, who resides in Mansfield, will match blows with Mike Cefferitte, veteran Cleveland lad. Mel, who two years ago was one of the better boxers in his class, has been idle but will be in top form for the engagement.

Bob Miller, a lad with a dynamite right, who appeared on the Junior Association of Commerce boxing tournament last spring, is scheduled to fight in one of the three-round settos.

Miller, a welterweight, is making fast strides and his manager expects the lad to be ready to go against the tough competition in the Cleveland Golden Gloves tourney next spring.

* * *

Carbetta, a semi-finalist in the Cleveland classic this spring, has one thought in mind. He wants to win that Cleveland crown and is willing to spend lots of time preparing for his crucial battle.

Barons Favorites In Hockey League

CLEVELAND — (INS) — Unless other sextets in the American Hockey league bolster their scoring machines the Cleveland Barons will make a runaway race for the championship, hockey observers were convinced today after the Barons scored their fourth straight win-shutout — over the Buffalo Bisons.

* * *

The only team showing form anywhere near the Barons is Springfield. The Indians have won three, but have been tied twice.

The latest Baron win on Saturday night before 9,630 fans was a 5-0 shutout and a bruising affair in which Earl Bartholome starred, scoring two goals. Goalie Moe Roberts had another of his "on" nights to keep the Bisons from entering the scoring column.

Intelligence of Draftees Higher Than 1917 Mark

ST. LOUIS—(INS)—While those drafted in this country during the World war averaged a sixth-grade schooling, it is estimated that those registering this month for conscription will on the average have completed ten grades, Dr Homer W. Anderson, Superintendent of Instructions of the St. Louis Public schools, said in a recent address.

"We still have a long way to go," Dr. Anderson said, citing these figures. He stressed, however, the qualitative rather than the quantitative aspects of American education, saying:

"Our attempt is not to turn out young people who can read and write, merely, our product is American citizens, with a love of their country as well as a knowledge of its mechanics."

Kent State Star Still Holds Scoring Lead

COLUMBUS—(AP)—This may be Armistice day, but the battle for the Ohio collegiate football lead is in full swing.

* * *

Little Mickey Mittiga, Kent State's pint-size quarterback (he weighs 145) was held to a single point Saturday as Akron handed the Golden Flashes their first defeat in eight starts, but he stayed atop the heap with 51 markers. That 23-7 victory was Akron's first in eight attempts.

Tony Aiello of Youngstown was idle, sticking at 43 points, and Capt John Kostoyo of Wittenberg tied him for second place. Kostoyo scored a pair of touchdowns and an extra point in the 26-7 conquest of Marietta which gave the Springfield Indians the Ohio conference leadership and a tie with Wilberforce for the statewide No. 1 spot

Fenton Wolfe of Heidelberg, who didn't get into the 10-0 losing game against Muskingum, and Bob Nash of Toledo, who failed to score as the Rockets bowed 14-12 to a surprising Baldwin-Wallace club, stayed among the leaders with 42 points.

Next, with 36 each were Capt. Jimmy Langhurst of Ohio, who was idle and Dick Booth, Western Reserve's flashy halfback, who contributed the touchdown that enabled Reserve to beat Ohio University for the first time, 6 to 0.

Schnebly of Wilberforce is the state's best "point-after-touchdowner" with 14 to his credit as well as a field goal. Big Charley Maag, Ohio State tackle, and Don Scott, quarterback, have nine points each, Maag getting his on three field goals and Scott booting nine points after touchdown without a miss

TOLEDO WAITE GRID GAME WITH PORTLAND ON AGAIN

TOLEDO—(AP)—The Toledo Waite high school football game with Portland, Ore., Nov. 30, is on again. The board of education Saturday reconsidered its decision to force cancellation of the contest after the old Newsboy Goodfellows' association agreed to advance its proposed charity game with Waite from Nov 30 to Nov. 25. Waite previously had expressed reluctance to play the charity tilt because of "unethical athletic activities" charges filed with the board

NEW YORK—(AP)—When a team gets into November without losing a football game, it has to be good. That is seen this week as only two colleges of "major" rating dropped from the unbeaten, untied rating as the list dwindled to 24. Michigan lost a 7-6 decision to Minnesota, also unbeaten and untied, and Penn State was tied 13-13 by Syracuse.

EXPECTS HARD FIGHT TO GET LATINS' TRADE

Goodyear President Fears Dictator Nations Will Undersell U. S.

AKRON (UP) - American business with South America is enjoying a "breathing spell," according to industrialist P. W. Litchfield. He feels the real battle for Latin American markets will begin when the current European and Asiatic wars are over.

Litchfield says this country need not fear the possibility of military penetration of the western hemisphere half so much as the economic penetration that will begin when Germany and Japan are freed of their military burdens. Litchfield is chairman of the board of Goodyear Tire and Rubber company

When that time times, he said the dictator controlled nations will "move into South American markets with products costing less than ours and with a restrictive trade system which would erect a wall between us and the South American markets."

The United States never can hope to win "control" of trade with the southern continent, he feels. "We can win, with proper economic strategy," he said, "a considerable share of trade from the Rio Grande to the median line of Brazil. Below that South America is a natural European market."

The job of the North American business man now and in the future, he said, is to maintain free trade and to get our share of South American business on a fair economic basis.

"We can do three things immediately to foster this vital South American commerce" he said. "We can assist them in developing their airlines and highways to make contact easier with North America. We can help South America to produce export products which are not in competition with our own. And, lastly, we can begin in our schools to build up an understanding and a friendship with the South American republics."

Litchfield believes the Spanish language should be substituted for Latin in North American schools.

DE GAULLE WINS FRENCH COLONY AFTER BATTLE

Seizes Gabon After Occupying Libreville After Two Days of Fierce Fighting.

BULLETIN

VICHY — (AP) — The "Free French" forces of Gen. Charles DeGaulle have captured Libreville, chief port of Gabon in French Equatorial Africa, the Petain government admitted in an official statement tonight.

BULLETIN

SHANGHAI—(U.P.)—A Domei (Japanese) news agency dispatch from Hanoi tonight said that Admiral Jean De Coux, governor of French Indo-China, had resigned. The Domei dispatch said it was believed that De Coux resigned because of difficulties created by strong sentiment in Saigon for the "Free France" movement headed by Gen. Charles De Gaulle.

(By International News Service)

LONDON—"Free French" expeditionary forces headed by Gen. Charles De Gaulle today controlled the strategic French West African colony of Gabon after seizing and occupying the port of Libreville, it was reported in London today.

The port was occupied over furious French resistance in less than two days of fighting, according to latest dispatches.

Meanwhile, both the British admiralty and air ministry denied a Vichy report that British planes had carried out an intensive bombing of Libreville. This statement said:

"No aircraft under British control have undertaken bombing operations in that area."

It was understood in London that Libreville had been surrendered formally to Gen. De Gaulle. An official communique was expected shortly.

Advices from Leopoldville, capital of the Belgian congo, said Libreville fell after the Vichy government ordered colonial authorities to cease resistance, on grounds that it was "useless."

Occupation of the port gave the De Gaulle administration its first African coastal base from which British south Atlantic commerce routes can be protected.

It also might serve as the starting point for a new expedition against Dakar, which De Gaulle forces and British ships failed to seize last month.

The British broadcasting corporation, quoting advices from Leopoldville, said losses on both sides were "insignificant."

De Gaulle's troops were declared to have been received enthusiastically by the Libreville populace as well as by residents of villages along the line of advance.

De Gaulle circles in London insisteid that capture or "liberation" of Libreville and the Gabon colony was accomplished purely through Frenchmen "united under the banner of free France."

But to appeared that British warships were in the vicinity of Port Gentil, to the south, where the De Gaulle landing party apparently was put ashore. The French submarine Poncelot was reported scuttled by her crew under fire of British warships after the submarine unsuccessfully attacked one of the British vessels.

NEW YORK—(AP)—Small boys called patrolmen to rescue a cat lodged by his neck in the small opening of a sidewalk deadlight from which the glass was missing.

SCRANTON, Pa.—(INS)—Police authorities aided by the federal bureau of investigation relentlessly pursued their searchtoday for a solution to the bomb explosion which blasted the lives of the son and daughter of Dr. E. B. Rebhorn, Scranton health officer. Rewards totaled $9300.

While FBI men sought to establish the type of bomb used, Lackawanna county District Attorney Michael J. Eagen said police were "tracking down every person who is believed to have a grievance against Dr. Rebhorn."

"We have already questioned several and have released them," Eagen added, "but we feel confident we are on the right track."

In the Washington laboratories of the FBI, experts are expected to make tests today of bomb fragments and the clothes of the victims, William, 19, and his 17-year-old sister, Lois.

Although no definite motive has been uncovered for the crime, authorities pointed to the fact that Dr. Rebhorn's work might lead to enmities.

Beside his duties as city health officer, Dr. Rebhorn is surgeon for a coal company, assistant chief surgeon at a local hospital, and has testified in numerous miners' compensation cases.

CITY JOINS IN OBSERVANCE OF ARMISTICE DAY

Ceremonies Held In Central Park; Judge Huston To Speak Tonight.

and was to have some special observance of the day.

Last night more than 1,200 persons attended the Armistice religious services at First Lutheran church, where Rev. Grover E. Swoyer, chaplain of McVey Post, made a plea for peace. A choir of 100 voices, directed by Legionnaire James T. Weber, which occupied the sides of the balcony and choir loft, took part in the service.

The church was filled with men in uniforms and members of patriotic societies. Rev. Swoyer said that it was only "by way of sacrifice" that the American people had won and had maintained their most sacred national rights, their Constitution, their Bill of Rights and their flag, and only by sacrifice could they hold them in these troubled days.

He told his audience that the attitude which accepted the philosophy that there would always be wars was all wrong and that peace would come only when men realized the futility of settling anything by wars.

In every city and community over the nation today special emphasis was laid on this year's observance of the day which, for 22 years, had been a reminder that a great war was over and that men might live in peace.

At historic Arlington cemetery in Washington where many of the nation's heroes are buried, President Roosevelt placed a wreath at the tomb of the Unknown Soldier, and told the people assembled there that the men who died in 1917 and '18 were not sacrificed in vain. He stated his faith that democracy, the "new order of the ages" will survive the present era of modern feudalism and dictators.

He said that a century from now historians will brand as "puny and false" efforts to convince the world that the blood sacrifices of the first World war were wholly in vain.

"I, for one, do not believe that the era of democracy in human affairs can or will be snuffed out in our lifetime," he said. "I, for one, do not believe that the world will revert to either a modern form of ancient slavery or to controls vested in modern feudalism or modern emperors or modern dictators in these days. The very people under their iron heels will, themselves, rebel."

The chief executive spoke from the Arlington amphitheater, in front of the white marble tomb of the Unknown Soldier, at which another president, Warren Harding, said only 18 short years ago, "It must not, it shall not happen again."

The dramatic, tragic contrast between Armistice day of 1940 and those of the past 22 years, was pointed out today by war correspondents. Every year, until the present, all Europe was silent for a few minutes just before 11 a. m. The whirr of machines in factories and the rush of business was halted for a few moments. But today there was no time for such things, and the anniversary of the armistice which was to silence guns came on the wings of a war which was beyond the conception of the men who dropped their guns on the bloody soil of Europe 22 years ago.

In 1918 an obscure German corporal lay on a hospital bed at Pomerania and "blushed with shame and burning rage" that the German military might had cracked and [illegible] had risen in the Reich. Today that "little corporal" assured Germans and the rest of the world that this war would be won by Germany and without compromise.

but only four broke through to the city proper. An alarm was sounded but no bombs or gun-fire was heard.

Then, shortly before 11 a. m., the hour customarily set aside for a moment of silence commemorating the end of the World war, the Germans were back over London again. The city had planned no armistice ceremonies.

Meanwhile, the air ministry reported that "places attacked by the Royal air force last night included targets in central Germany."

British Gird For Near East Drive.

LONDON —(AP)— Britain will strike at the Axis forces in the Near East at the earliest possible moment and is reinforcing her army there with every man, gun, tank and plane that can be spared from the defense of this country, a high British source asserted today.

Anticipating that the Near East will develop into the major theater of war this winter, this source said, Britain must hasten reinforcements in preparation for "a fierce and protracted struggle."

He added that Egypt must be held "at all costs" because of its vital strategical position.

He estimated Italian strength in Libya, pointed toward Egypt and the Suez Canal, at 250,000 troops, plus a group of German technicians and tactical experts.

Commenting on the Near Eastern campaign, experts declared that Britain's position in the western desert was "immensely improved" with "better" armaments and defenses.

British Planes Attack Danzig.

LONDON — UP — The air ministry said today that the Royal Air Force delivered a smashing attack last night on the railroad junctions of Danzig—the Baltic seaport where Germany's Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop is scheduled to meet the train of Soviet Premier V. M. Molotov tomorrow.

The attack was the first which the RAF had ever made on the distant port 250 miles further to the northeast than Berlin—and involving a round trip bombing flight of 1,600 miles from British bases.

Pedestrians Take A Detour Around Downtown Puddle

Pedestrians were detouring around a big puddle of water two inches deep today at the southwest corner of Fourth and Main streets.

The water formed in a low place in the new Fourth street paving although there is a catch basin opening less than six feet away.

Street employes attempted to drain the miniature lake by flushing the water into the sewer, but the rain kept the pocket filled almost as fast as they emptied it.

There was another smaller puddle at the Fourth and Walnut streets intersection where the Fourth street paving dips at the south side of the street.

What was left of the division was reported retreating in disorder, leaving behind uncounted dead and almost all its equipment —even medical supplies.

"Enemy losses in dead and wounded were very heavy. A large number of prisoners was taken and a great quantity of al sorts of war material not yet counted fell into our hands," a communique said.

To the west, toward the coast, where the Italians started their first wedge into Epirus almost two weeks ago, the Greeks were said to have stopped another Italian attack over the week-end, annihilated two battalions, and forced the invaders back under heavy artillery fire.

From heights overlooking the encircled Italian base at Koritza, at the opposite end of the battlefront, additional Greek guns hauled into position through ice and slush were reported to be continuing a steady bombardment, reducing Italian defenses for a final assault.

The Athens radio alleged Italian prisoners reported that Albanian troops, fighting alongside Italian units, had been machine-gunned from the back when they retreated.

Unfavorable weather brought a let-up in Italian air raids. Two towns on the island of Crete were reported bombed yesterday.

havoc with communications in Iowa and Nebraska.

Telegraphic communication between Des Moines and Omaha, Neb., was suspended by one company after high winds felled ice-laden poles and wires. Falling temperatures converted what had been heavy rains into sleet and snow.

The snow was falling so heavily in northwest Iowa that visibility was limited to 50 yards.

Nebraska phone service was disrupted by 200 breaks and facilities in the northwest areas were described as "skeleton." Planes were grounded at Omaha, Cheyenne, Wyo., and Salt Lake City, Utah. Buses were an hour late, trains an hour and a half behind schedule, and roads were reported drifting badly in the vicinity of Kearney and Fremont.

The snow ranged from three inches in the east to 10 inches at Long Pine, Neb., in the west. Although skies were clearing in that area, thermometers hovered near the zero mark.

DELAY ACTION

Congressional Leaders Postpone Adjournment Plans.

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)— Administration leaders today delayed plans for adjourning congress until next week because of the death of Sen. Key Pittman, (D., Nev.)

Speaker Sam Rayburn, who had planned to ask congress to adjourn Friday, said that attendance of members of the house and senate at Pittman's funeral in Nevada would necessitate a delay. The funeral train will not return to the capital until next Sunday.

The senate meets tomorrow and will recess immediately out of respect for Pittman, its president pro tem. The house met briefly today and Rayburn appointed a committee to attend the funeral.

The house will meet again Thursday when it will recess until Monday.

relations will be canvassed thoroughly," official quarters said.

There was no direct indication as to the nature of and new pact to be signed, but widened Russo-German economic cooperation was generally anticipated. Stress was laid in Berlin upon the argument that non-Axis countries in Europe now must choose whether or not to enter the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo-Moscow camp.

Molotov's train will be greeted at the border by German foreign office officials.

The Russian delegation is expected to see Hitler soon after it has exchanged visits with Von Ribbentrop Italian Ambassador Dino Alfiere and Suburu Kasusa, the Japanese envoy, will keep in close touch with all developments. Details of the official program and the place of Molotov's residence during his visit are being kept secret for obvious reasons.

Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering's Essener National Zeitung emphasized the importance of Turkey in the forthcoming conversations.

The paper said that the talk between Hitler and Molotov is expected to cause nations "at present not involved in the European war, including Turkey, to revise their attitude."

Moscow Says Russia Will Remain Neutral

MOSCOW —(INS)— An official declaration of Soviet Russia's intention to "adhere to a policy of neutrality" was made today in a government communique announcing Premier-Foreign Commissar V. M. Molotov's departure for Berlin, where he will confer with Chancellor Hitler.

(Editor's note: Rome circles reported that Italian Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano also will participate in the Berlin talks. Axis quarters predicted that conferences would be an incentive to other non-belligerent nations, including Turkey, to "revise their attitude.")

Indicating that the Berlin negotiations may produce an important pact, 23 Soviet foreign office authorities, German Ambassador Werner Graf Von Schulenberg and Karl Schnurre, leader of a Nazi trade delegation, accompanied Molotov when he left Moscow last night.

Russian newspapers carried brief reports of Molotov's departure but made no attempts to discuss the political implications of his visit.

L. W. Birch, Roll Call chairman, said today that it would aid the drive immensely if every one who enrolls would wear their Red Cross button and display the Roll Call "stickers."

The first two concerns to enroll one hundred per cent today were the Mansfield Rapid Transit company and the Wappner Funeral home. Two other persons who enlisted early were Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Hudson of Denver, who have stopped off in Mansfield enroute to Florida and given their memberships to this chapter. They enrolled last week on their way south for the winter.

Tonight's dinner meeting will be in charge of John Finefrock, chapter chairman, and Birch. Mrs. L. J. Ott is in charge of the dinner.

Turn To Kidnap Theory in Case Of Missing Boy

CARTERSVILLE, Ga. —(AP)— State police turned to a theory of kidnaping today in the disappearance of two-year-old Murray Upshaw, jr., after a three-day search of the countryside near his farm home failed to yield a clue as to his whereabouts.

The sandy-haired boy and his small white dog "Nicky" were missed from the back yard of their north Georgia home at noon Friday.

"Unless some remote spot was inadvertently overlooked in the search, the logical conclusion is that someone must have taken this little boy and his dog away from his home." Public Safety Commissioner Lon Sullivan said.

The boy's father Murray Upshaw, controls several hundred acres, devoted mainly to cotton raising. His mother, the former Betty Raines is one of two girls reared by Corra Harris, late Georgia author.

Campina, a thickly-populated town about 100 miles northwest of Bucharest, was reported to be "in ruins," with fierce fires raging in refinery plants, including those of Romana-Americana, a subsidiary of Standard Oil company of New Jersey.

The United States legation said a hasty check disclosed no Americans among the casualties of the quake thus far.

Ploesti, an important oil center nearer the capital, also was hard hit, while hundreds of roofs and large buildings collapsed in Brasov, historic German Transylvanian city, killing some and injuring a great many.

Nearly all theaters and public buildings were reported leveled in the hard-hit cities of Galati and Focsani, and scores of bodies were said to have been located already in Galati, a Rumanian submarine base.

Two Dead, Forty Poisoned By Breakfast of Pancakes

ROACH POWDER IS BLAMED AS MEN COLLAPSE

50 Doctors Required To Treat Persons In Salvation Army Center Tragedy.

PITTSBURGH —(U.P.)— At least two men were dead and approximately 40 others were stricken with food poisoning today a short time after they ate a breakfast of pancakes at the Salvation army center here.

The death toll was expected to reach five, as a number of those stricken were reported in serious condition:

It was feared that roach powder may have been introduced into the pancake batter accidentally. Coroner P. J. Henney ordered all available remnants of the breakfast confiscated for chemical analysis.

Most of the victims were taken to St. Francis hospital, where between 50 and 80 doctors and nurses were pressed into service to prevent the death toll from mounting.

The two fatal victims were Joseph F. Williams, 65, and Nathaniel Campbell, 55, who died shortly after eating. A few hours after the men had eaten, those stricken began to collapse all over the building.

Police Inspector Carl Hillenbrand said: "When we got there, the men were violently ill. They were lying all about. Most of them were out cold."

Adjutant Ray Barber, in charge of the Salvation army headquarters, said that 70 men were served a breakfast of pancakes, bacon and coffee.

STATE FUNERAL FOR EX-PREMIER

Chamberlain, Who Sought For 'Peace In Our Time' Dies to Hum of German Planes.

(By United Press)

LONDON—A state funeral was planned today for former Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain, who in 1938 assured Great Britain of "peace in our time" and in 1939 led Britain into war.

Chamberlain died "peacefully" at 5:30 p. m. Sunday afternoon in his country home in Hampshire while German air raiders were winging their way over Hampshire's neatly mown fields for their nightly attack on London.

Chamberlain had been gravely ill for days. But several German bombs had dropped near his home. In his final hours, the former prime minister was in a coma, but for weeks he had listened to the hum of Nazi planes. With him were his wife and two sisters.

Chamberlain was 71. A tired and ailing man, he severed all connection with the government on Oct. 3 and retired to await death, unable to live for the outcome of the war he had hoped to prevent by appeasing the dictators.

The funeral was being planned while government leaders paid tribute. Prime Minister Winston Churchill preferred to make his tribute a statement to the house of commons. It was expected that the body would be brought to London for a state funeral despite the air raids.

Most government leaders and newspapers stressed the tremendous responsibility which weighed upon Chamberlain during his "era of appeasement" and his subsequent bitter disappointment. The newspapers made no attempt to suppress condemnation of Chamberlain's policy which led to the historic Munich agreement, but emphasized that whatever was history's verdict regarding the wisdom of his policies, there could be no doubt of his courage, public spirit, integrity and devotion to duty.

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—"Northwest Mounted Police." Cecil B. DeMille production. Principals: Gary Cooper, Madeleine Carroll, Paulette Goddard, Preston Foster, Robert Preston, George Bancroft, Lynne Overman, Akim Tamiroff, Walter Hampden, Lon Chaney, jr., Montagu Love, Regis Toomey.

Sometimes I think Gary Cooper is the greatest actor in Hollywood. I thought so just after seeing this picture. In it he is so natural that by contrast everything else looks and sounds like so much DeMille.

DeMille, of course, has a love for theatrics, and "North West Mounted Police" gives him a field day. It's a bright field day, for the picture is in color, predominantly red because of the Mounties' coats and the bloodshed.

Historian DeMille concerns himself with the Riel halfbreed rebellion in Canada in the late 19th century. The whites have been pushing farther west, setting up homes, and the halfbreeds, led by the school teacher from across the border in the States, express their resentment. It's up to the Mounties to stop all this, outnumbered though they are, and this accounts for a whale of a lot of blood-and-thunder action in which virtue achieves its customary triumph, and after which the hero, contrary to custom, is left without the girl but leading away the prisoner he came North to get.

* * *

The principal Mountie heroes are Foster, Preston, Love and Toomey. Cooper is from the Texas Rangers, an outfit which also gets its man. That the man turns out to be Bancroft, who plays an unscrupulous whisky-trader also sought by the Mounties, is no more surprising than that he also is found to be the father of the half-breed wildcat (Goddard) who causes Preston to desert his post. This desertion gives Gary, in love with Preston's sister (Carroll), a chance to cover up with his own quiet heroism for the brother, so that everyone is happy at the end except Preston (who is dead) and Bancroft (who is headed for Texas to die.)

* * *

Cooper passes through all the melodrama with an ingratiating tongue-in-cheek air and Miss Carroll is beautiful as the oh-so-good-and-noble sister. Paulette just tries and tries to be a wildcat, and measures up in dialect and frenzy, I suppose, to the DeMille standard.

* * *

"Who Killed Aunt Maggie?" Screenplay by Stuart Palmer from the novel by Medora Field. Directed by Arthur Lubin. Principals: John Hubbard, Wendy Barrie, Edgar Kennedy, Elizabeth Patterson, Onslow Stevens, Joyce Compton Walter Abel, Mona Barrie, Willie Best, Daisy Lee Mothershed, Milton Parsons.

* * *

The action opens in a radio advertising office where Wendy and John, about to be wed, are quarreling because John thinks her radio serial is preposterous. Then the action shifts to the locale of the serial—Wistaria Hall, an ante bellum estate near Atlanta. Uncle Charles' corpse disappears, Aunt Maggie is strangled, a doctor's wife is murdered, and enough other strange goings-on go on to convince John that Wendy was right about the serial. It's a good whodunit.

LEAPS FROM CAR, ESCAPES DEATH

Woman Unhurt as Train Hits, Demolishes Automobile at Crossing.

GALION — Mrs. Mabel Ritzhaupt of Beck road, northwest of Galion, narrowly escaped injury and possible death when her car was completely demolished early Saturday evening when it was struck by an east-bound train south of Galion on the South State road.

Mrs. Ritzhaupt reported to Galion police that she jumped from her car when the signal lights at the railroad crossing flashed, and before the on-coming train struck her car.

According to the police report the accident occurred at 6:30 p. m. when Frank Wilson, driving south, had crossed the railroad tracks and was waiting on the right side of the road to make a left hand turn.

Another car driven by Burton Cass stopped behind the Wilson car, being unable to pass it, and Mrs. Ritzhaupt, driving behind the two cars, collided with the rear end of the Cass car. The back part of the Ritzhaupt car was on the tracks when it stopped and the train struck it.

Mrs. Ritzhaupt lives three miles north of route 19 on the Beck road.

Mansfield News-Journal

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, MONDAY, NOVEMBER 11, 1940.

As someone thought to remark: "An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of defense.

Now that election predictions are out of the way, the next wild claims will probably appear in garden seed catalogs.

Some kinds of germs are said to travel at the rate of a mile a minute—so one of them may have been driving the car that passed you on the highway yesterday.

Mexico More Friendly

MEXICO lately seems to be growing "simpatico" after a long period of misunderstanding and what looked to our people like ill nature. President Lazaro Cardenas adopts a much more friendly and co-operative policy. In a recent interview he declared his expectations of a "prompt, effective and satisfactory settlement of all pending questions" between his country and ours.

Senor Cardenas approves our government's plan for naval and air bases in Mexico as a part of the new defense system for this hemisphere. He prefers to have such defenses established and directed by Mexicans, and there will probably be no quarrel about that if Mexico assumes their cost, or a reasonable share of it.

The important fact is that the two governments are now in almost complete agreement and a final settlement is expected soon. If it really ends the misunderstanding and lack of co-operation that have prevailed for the last few years, it will be a great boon to both countries and will further smooth our relations with the rest of Latin-America.

All of which is vitally important at a time when European dictators are moving desperately to get a foothold in this hemisphere, alienate our neighbors and undermine our leadership.

Driving Without Proper Lights

WHILE state highway patrolmen, operating outside Mansfield, make at least occasional arrests of motorists driving after dark with insufficient lights, the city police department shows no indication of regarding this as an offense worthy of attention—even to the extent of requiring the law violator to immediately replace burned out bulbs, as is the practice in many cities for first offenses.

The habit of driving in Mansfield without turning on lights at the designated time (one-half hour after sunset), or of traveling after nightfall with only one headlight and no taillight showing, has become so common as to make many motorists feel that this is perfectly all right and that they are under no obligation to replace burned out bulbs.

As, for instance, the driver of a motor vehicle (Ohio license 4-FJ-99) traveling east on Park avenue west at 6:35 Saturday evening, with only one headlight and no taillight showing. This is dangerous on city streets, and even more so on highways outside the city. It is also such a perfectly obvious offense that any police officer should have no trouble in detecting it. From the standpoint of safety it may be regarded as even more important than overtime parking.

In this season of earlier darkness and greater traffic danger, a "Check your lights week" for motorists would merit police cooperation in warning or arresting offenders.

The Problem of Boys and Guns

AFTER nine boys, 12 to 16 years old, had been arrested in a certain town for shooting out the glass from 47 windows in a school building, the board of education in that city asked hardware stores in the vicinity not to sell BB guns to children. The damage done to the windows amounted to $75. The damage done to the boys will depend on how their case is handled. They are to be prosecuted in juvenile court.

It's a good idea not to sell any kind of guns to youngsters who have no legitimate use for them and no judgment or self-control in handling such playthings.

On the other hand, what boy doesn't like to shoot—a slingshot, or a bow and arrow, or a gun? With target shooting and tournaments under proper supervision and instruction, in school gyms or in recreation centers or such groups as the Boy Scouts, this natural zest for shooting could be exercised with harm to no one and without property damage.

Young people must be taught to behave themselves, to respect property, to distinguish right from wrong in their sport. A right attitude in these matters could be more effectively presented, intelligently and constructively, if high spirits and pride in physical prowess were at the same time given range in safe and reasonable ways.

Newcomer In the Sky Show

THE 1940 SKY SHOW began well with the dazzling group of five planets visible at the same time on clear nights last February. It is going to be interesting to the last, for this month or next it will present a new comet.

The Cunningham comet, discovered on a photographic plate at the Harvard observatory in September by Leland E. Cunningham, has been coming steadily closer since then. Professor William H. Barton, jr., executive curator of the Hayden planetarium in New York, believes we'll all have a chance to see it with the naked eye in December.

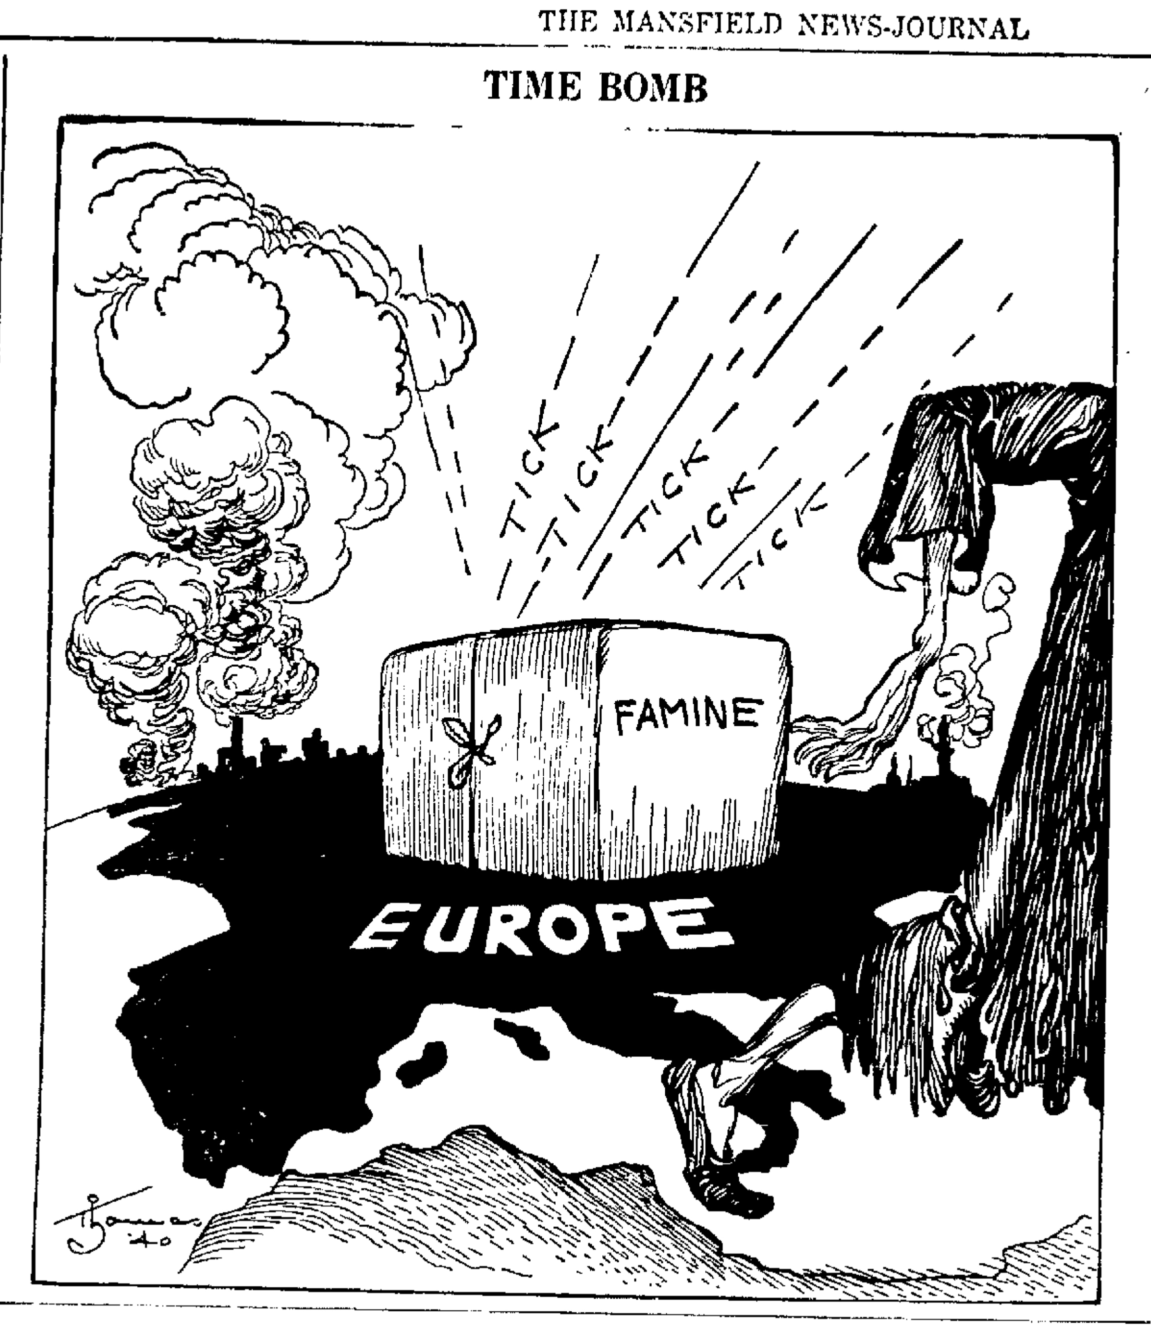
> "I am taking [illegible] that the presence of the comet may be detected in the western sky by sharp eyes before Dec. 1, but the chances are that it will not be distinguishable as a comet with a tail before that date. What I mean by naked-eye visibility is that any ordinary lay observer will be able to look into the sky at night and know instantly that he is seeing a comet, one of the most unusual, inspiring and spectacular sights of the heavens."

Lay observers beholding this comet will be thrilled, but not startled or alarmed. Our predecessors, who thought every unusual thing in the heavens some fearful portent, lacked our instruments and knowledge and could not anticipate a new appearance of this sort.

Hawaii Aspires To Statehood

HAWAII votes for statehood, and those lovely islands in the Pacific seem on the way to becoming a full-fledged state. The islanders' wishes, to be sure, do not settle the question. They are merely advisory and the decisive power to raise the territory to statehood rests with congress. But a bill to that end has been pending for some time, and a strong demand from the Hawaiians themselves will naturally influence the decision.

If the movement succeeds, there will be, for the first time a full-fledged member of the Union not only outside of continental United States but 2,000 miles from its nearest sister states.



TIME BOMB

More About Days of First Draft

—By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON — Taking for granted that you know your selectee of today, this is second of two articles designed to demonstrate how different (or how much the same) he is from his draftee brother of 23 years ago. Here's what the conscriptee of 1917 was thinking about and doing:

James Ten Eyck had just staggered the thought of human endurance by rowing 150 miles up the Hudson from New York to Albany — without rest. Hazel Cunningham put an exclamation point after that by swimming the Golden Gate.

There were bombings in a Chicago theater, in a Milwaukee church (the bomb didn't explode, however, until it had been transferred to the police station where 10 persons were killed); in the governor's mansion in Sacramento, Calif.; in a church in St. Paul; in an express company package in Sea Bright, N. J.; in a railroad car in Windsor, N. D.; and in a petticoat factory in Queens on Long Island.

A fellow named Harold R. Peat caused a sort of "Gone With the Wind" sensation by coming out with a book called "Private Peat." . . . Joyce Kilmer published "Main Street and Other Poems" and nobody cared. . . . James Branch Cabell ignored the war (thereby getting criticized) with "Cream of the Jest."

The big railroad strike was in the making, with 19 Chicago railroads' workers threatening to do something about it unless the pay envelopes were fattened.

Pershing Promoted.

GEN. JOHN J. (BLACK JACK) PERSHING was made general by an act of congress. . . . He forbade the soldiers in France to drink anything stronger than light wines and beers. . . . And caught it from both sides. . . . The prohibitionists claiming he had violated the holy dictum of the Eighteenth amendment to the Constitution (which was still in the process of ratification) by permitting the boys to drink anything stronger than sarsaparilla. . . . And the boys grumbled that they couldn't fight on beer and sherry. . . . More than 2,000 saloons closed in New York because of taxes . . .and the "father of prohibition," Sen. Morris Sheppard of Texas, predicted the all-time death of Demon Rum by the spring of 1918.

Rabbi Stephen S. Wise urged women's suffrage because it would make the world safe for peace. . . . But in Washington scores of suffragettes were sent to the workhouse at Occaquan for picketing the White House. . . . And trouble broke out then because the ladies went on hunger strikes, claimed they were brutally mistreated. . . . And sued for the consideration and privileges of "political prisoners."

Songs of the Era.

IF YOU couldn't sing "K—K—Katy," "There's A Long, Long Trail," "Pack Up Your Troubles," and "Tipperary," you couldn't sing. . . . Jesse L. Williams wrote a title-shocking drama called "Why Marry?" . . . and the bedroom farce era was well under way with "Parlor, Bedroom and Bath." . . . Sir Arthur Guy Empey's "Over the Top" was selling more copies than the Bible. . . . Ethel Barrymore was giving Broadway a successful revival of "The Lady of the Camellias" and a couple of gents named Victor Herbert and Jerome Kern had turned out a tuneful bit called "Miss 1917."

There was a big scandal in New York because a little girl, daughter of a family that had come down in the world, testified in the detention home that her mother and "fine ladies" who called on her mother smoked cigarets!

A 14-story building was a skyscraper in anybody's city. . . . And if you followed the automobile advertising, you tried to figure out whether to put a brand new $57.50 winter top on the old flivver or go high-hat and spend your war profits on a Maxwell, Hup, Saxon, Franklin, Velie, Allen, Case, Owen-Magnetic or Peerless.

Health and Diet

Severe Tests for Military Pilots.

—By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THE medical examination of any candidate for the United States Army is severe—for officers more severe than for privates. And the most severe of all is for military pilots of airplanes. Besides the ordinary examinations the pilot has to pass certain special tests. The eyes and ears are given most careful scrutiny—the ability of the ears to keep clear in changing atmospheres, and the function of the ears to maintain equilibrium are apparently individual traits and they must be tested.

The special stresses for the military pilot, according to Fortune magazine, are (1) air neuresis, which is a breakdown of co-ordination, caused by flying in dangerous and exciting circumstances; (2) lack of oxygen at high altitudes, and; (3) the "blackout," sudden blindness caused by effect of centrifugal force on the blood stream during the turn out from a high dive.

Oxygen Tests.

Oxygen lack in high altitudes causes an attack on the judgment of the pilot. It can be imitated experimentally and it is remarkable to see candidates tested under conditions of low oxygen pressure. They are asked questions to which they either reply in writing or by the spoken voice, and they are given tests with instruments. When the oxygen pressure gets low they think they are replying perfectly sensibly, but what they say makes no sense.

Oxygen starvation in high altitudes has been studied for many years. In high altitudes, the pressure of the oxygen falls, although the percentage of oxygen is the same. The forces for "pushing the oxygen into the blood" decreases. If it were a simple matter of rarefied atmosphere we could make up for it by taking more breaths, but the pressure must be increased also. The problem is, of course, solved by the use of oxygen masks—more or less perfectly. The masks and apparatus are constantly being improved.

Blackout Bugaboo.

The blackout is by no means so easily controlled although Commander John R. Paffen, of the navy, is confident that he and his associates are on the track of a solution. Both the British and the Germans have used a pneumatic belt for pilots. By contracting the belt during the dives, it tends to forestall the accumulation of blood in the lower parts of the body, and keeps the blood supply to the brain more nearly normal.

A crouching position during the dive also helps to maintain circulation in the brain by pressing the brain nearer the heart. The pilots are not allowed to eat beans or other food which causes gas. If the blackout problem is solved, it will be as important as the discovery of the bomb sight. The strength of American planes allows them to dive at great speeds.

No examination, or psychometric test, has yet been devised, which is able to distinguish whether a pilot's nerves will stand the goff of air fighting or not.

Timely Editorial

November In the Outdoors.

Engrossed with landslides, returns from missing precincts and the return of missing candidates, the fact had escaped many persons that there is more to November than election day. There is a tang in the air that proves all wine is not bottled. Wood fires, the aroma of burning leaves, pumpkin pie, apple cider, seats on the 50-yard line, Thanksgiving and an increase in the turkey crop are among its assets. It is the part of wisdom to make the most of the outdoors while one may, for November is a stimulating month as all who inhale its [illegible] know.

It is a month that brings [illegible] a hardy breed whose distinguished characteristics are brown jackets, laced boots, red caps and a glint in the eye that belongs to none except the hunter.

But one does not have to be a hunter to enjoy November, a fact also known to those discriminating sportsmen, the hikers. They carry no guns and their only interest in rabbits, quail and pheasants is to see that they [illegible] too. To them the woods offer solitude and security after crowded streets and arterial highways where they are hooted at by automobile horns, drivers and traffic cops.—Newark Advocate.

Subversive Acts of Nazi Consuls May Bring Break-Off of Relations

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—The state department is absolutely opposed to it, but the question of breaking off diplomatic relations with Germany may come to a head very soon.

Reason for the showdown is irrefutable evidence gathered by the Dies committee showing the activity of German consuls in the United States. Certain letters seized by the committee reveal that Nazi consuls close to Hitler have gone to such amazing lengths in their subversive activities that publication of the letters would leads to a tremendous public outcry and demand for the recall of the consuls to Germany.

The state department is opposed to their recall, because this would mean the recall of American consuls and diplomats from Germany, with the virtual, if not actual, breaking off of diplomatic relations. The state department opposes this because it believes that American diplomats in Germany are useful as observers who can inform Washington as to what is going on.

However, some other administration advisers take an exactly contrary view. They point out that Hitler has forced American diplomats to leave Denmark, Norway, Holland, Belgium, Poland and most of the Nazi-occupied areas, so there are not many U. S. observers left. Furthermore, they point out that, American diplomats are so isolated in Germany that most of the information they get actually comes from American newspapermen in Germany. This information could continue from the press regardless of the presence of American diplomats and consuls.

Nazis In Latin America.

THERE is a large question-mark in the minds of Latin American diplomats regarding the United States policy toward Nazi Fifth Columnists. Nazi agents have been the plague of Latin America, operating almost openly in Uruguay. Many of these agents have diplomatic immunity and cannot be arrested.

Some actually have come to the United States from Germany and secured diplomatic visas in Washington for the Latin American countries where they were about to work. Latin American diplomats know that they are agents, but as long as their governments continue diplomatic relations with Germany, they are bound by reciprocal agreement to issue diplomatic visas when requested by the Nazi government.

Latin Americans point out that if the United States would take the lead, and endeavor to rid the entire Western Hemisphere of Nazi Fifth Columnists, the rest of the continent would follow suit.

Under present diplomatic procedure we are virtually giving diplomatic protection to agents intent upon undermining us.

In U. S. Skies.

BRITAIN is all set to train 4,000 of its Royal Air Force pilots in the United States this winter—if the needed training planes can be obtained here.

That's the only obstacle, but it's a tough one. For the student pilot training requirements of the Army, Navy and the Civil Aeronautics board are so heavy that the companies making trainer ships can't meet their demands. Production capacity is being expanded, but the British need the planes immediately.

Defense authorities, at the president's direction, have tackled the problem and a solution may be worked out. If so the young Britishers will train here as civilians in private flying schools. This is within the law. Special legislation would be needed to train them in army and navy schools.

The R. A. F. cadets would receive primary training in these schools, limited to the rudiments of flying. They would then be sent to Canadian and British schools for combat instruction.

Note—Last summer, the British seriously considered setting up pilot training centers in southern states, but this was abandoned for fear the plan would become a partisan campaign issue.

"My Ambassador" Kennedy.

JOE KENNEDY looks mighty healthy for a man who has been through 244 air raids. "For two months," the ambassador says, "I never went to sleep without the sound of bombers overhead. But I got so used to it that when I got to Lisbon on the way home, I couldn't sleep. I was troubled by the auto horns!"

Kennedy tells how he managed to keep the Embassy work going after the air raid alarms sounded. "If we went into the cellar then, we wouldn't get any work done. So I stationed spotters on the roof, and we kept working after the alarm sounded, until the spotters saw the planes were really coming our way.

"Then the spotters gave a second warning, and we went to the shelter."

There isn't any night life, even for diplomats. "If you go out to dinner," says Kennedy, "you stay there—yes, all night. . . . I remember one night I came out of Claridge's and wanted to go home. There was a taxi at the curb, and the driver was hunched up in his cab, trying to read a newspaper by a little blue 'black-out' lamp.

"'Will you take me to 14 Prince's Gate?' I asked. 'Not me,' he said. I wouldn't go out on a night like this, not nowhere!'"

More British Bombing.

LONDON newsmen gave Kennedy a cocktail party before he left, and begged him to enjoy the privilege of being able to open shades and curtains at night. "They told me," said Kennedy, "that when I got home they wanted me to shut myself up in a room with windows and blinds closed, and then draw up the blinds and throw open the windows and spit out—and think of them!"

Nights are getting longer in London, and this means longer exposure to air raids. The Nazis can begin bombing at 4 in the afternoon, and keep on bombing until 7 in the morning.

The American public gets the impression that the bombing has relaxed, but only because Greece has taken the front pages. London is still being bombed—worse than ever—and the British are still taking it—better than ever.

The real trouble will come, in Kennedy's opinion, when disease breaks out from foul conditions in air raid shelters. There's nothing the matter with British morale, but if their health breaks, that's something else again.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—When Kay Kyser was in Hollywood making his 2nd motion picture, "You'll Find Out," he ran into a little apparatus called the sonovox. He brought it to New York with him and every night now at the Waldorf his fans are given an unusual show.

The sonovox is a gadget that transfers the human voice to a musical instrument. A singer holds a couple of black, globe-like objects against his throat and goes through the motion of singing—but silently. At the same time, the sax player toots a tune. Wires connect the globes to the sax and out of it comes the actual singing words of the vocalist but in the saxophone's own voice. It produces a most unusual efefct.

You probably are saturated with patriotic songs by this time (the music publishers are, even if you are not. They have had literally thousands of manuscripts submitted to them). But here comes the first "crowd" song that has made the grade. It is a number called "There Must Be An Easier Way to Make a Living," and it tells the story of Private Buck McGinnis, a former rich man's son who is facing the hard logic of the blistering heel in the government army camps.

* * *

This is one of those things with endless verses, designed for men to sing a la "Mlle. From Gay Paree."

* * *

Harry Link of the Feist Company thought such a thing would be a good idea in view of new draftees taking off for various camps throughout the country, and he told Harry Woods, Charlie Tobias, and Sam H. Stept to see what they could do. It's a peach.

* * *

Here's the way it goes:

"Private Buck McGinnis, who used to sleep 'til three . . . now gets up at dawn—when they blow the Reveille . . . They march him and they drill him, 'til he's completely out . . . When he hits the bunk, you'll hear him shout . . . Oh . . .

"There must be an easier way to make a living, there must be an easier way to get along . . . I'm in the army now, and I'm learning fast, and how . . . There must be an easier way to make a living."

* * *

Helen Hayes will wear jodhpurs in "Twelfth Night." . . . "Suzanna and the Elders" is a comedy about communal centers, with plural marriages its central theme . . . Leopold Stokowski, who recently returned from South America, has made a symphonic arrangement of a simple rhumba . . . . When his friend Enric Madriguera heard of this he said, "I know exactly how he feels . . . . You ought to hear my conga arrangement of 'Ochi Chornia.'" . . . . The son of a former president of a South American republic (later assassinated) is a dancer in New York . . . He has been here for six weeks.

2. Is a dolphn a fish or an animal?
3. Does the Mason and Dixon line extend from coast to coast?

Hints on Etiquette.

When two persons are reading, it is not very considerate or good manners for one to interrupt the other by reading aloud to him or her. It interrupts the reader's train of thought and is often very annoying.

Words of Wisdom.

Be not the fourth friend of him who had three before and lost them.—Lavater.

One-Minute Test Answers.

1. The Empire State building, New York. The Eiffel Tower is 1,000 feet high; the Empire State, 1,250.
2. An animal. It does not have scales.
3. No. It merely formed the boundary between the states of Maryland and Pennsylvania.

A Farmer's Diary

From City to Farm

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

LAST year I met the manager of a city department store. He was a fine looking man—keen eyed, alert, well dressed, with an erect dignified figure, and white hair. He had a quiet confident manner, and a strong, purposeful face. His appearance was impressive, and sufficiently different that I carried it in memory, as one carries a treasure to enrich his life.

Not long ago I passed a run down farm. The barn roof sagged, the chicken house was warped, the house was aged and square with a tower on top. Scaling blue paint offended me. A grape vine, bereft of leaves climbed along the leanto and clusters of fruit glistened in the sun. I heard water gurgling from a spring at the farther corner of the house, and stopped to look more closely.

A man with a wheelbarrow came around the house, and the splendid carriage, the unusual gait and the confident manner seemed familiar at once. It was the man from the department store. He greeted me most graciously.

"How long have you lived here?" I asked.

"Only since July," he answered. "We lived in the city over 30 years, but I was born on a farm and lived there until I was 18. It looks better to me now than ever. Farming was crude at that time with no modern conveniences. We all worked too hard, but I always felt there was a pleasure about the earth and crops and animals, and I always wanted to go back again. This farm has possibilities of being a fine place to live. Everything'll be modern in a little while. My wife and I have planned for quite a while how to adapt the house—we'll take down part of it."

"You're taking up farming as a hobby?" I suggested.

"No-o, not exactly. I've retired from business, and I've got a lot of life left in me yet. I need a place to manage, and I need exercise. Of course I golf and fish, but they're pure sport. This farm is different—I want to experiment with crops and cattle and suburban landscaping, and pass on what I can to the good of the neighborhood. Did you notice the nice farmsteads out this way? The neighbors are among the best I ever had, and already we are better acquainted here than we would have been in several years in town." He laughed. "My wife said to me only last night, 'Why didn't we retire sooner?'"

CHAPTER XXXIV

When they came back into the house at eleven o'clock the bridge game was still going on fiercely and steadily. The evening had been a little triumph for her, and she felt flushed with success, and happy that Philip had not been disappointed in her. They did not disturb the card players; they stood smiling and talking in one of the smaller drawing rooms for a few minutes, and then Philip put his arms about her and kissed her goodnight, and Jocelyn went upstairs to her room, absolutely wearied with felicity.

She went to the open French door that gave upon the wide upper balcony where Philip had said that his wife would dry her hair when she had washed it. His kisses, the touch of his hand, the sense of his protecting love was all around her as she stepped out into the moonlight.

But the sight of the lawns below and the treetops all about her made her suddenly think with horror and pity of Kent, and it was with the memory of him and her last sight of him strong upon her that she turned back to the doorway. And immediately her throat closed' on a scream and she felt her whole body turn icy and faint, for the shadow of a human form was against the window casing on the outside, half crouching, one hand spread against the frame.

"Who is it?" she said in a whisper. Instantly the answer came huskily. "Don't be frightened. It's me. It's Norma!"

For several seconds that seemed like hours Jocelyn was still too terrified to understand. She could not see the girl at first because of the darkness close to the house wall, but as Norma came nearer she recognized her, and put out a hand to clutch her and turned her to the light.

"Norma!" What brings you here now? Where have you come from?"

"Come in," said Norma in a whisper. "Lena or someone came in to turn down your bed and I came out. I've been waiting for you since—oh, about 9, I guess."

"When did you get in? Where's your mother? Norma, what has happened to you!" Jocelyn gasped rather than asked the last question, for they were in the room now, and she could see for the first time that the girl was in a terrible condition. Her hat and light coat and shoes were shabby and draggled: her face was white, she wore no make-up, and her hair hung in disorderly and shaggy locks about her ears.

She laughed without mirth—Norma's old laugh of childish bravado.

"Don't you think I look nice?" she asked. "I got in on the Celandaria today. A freighter, but she was bringing some Dutch school teachers and five or six Dutch maids back, and she brought me."

"Norma, you didn't come back alone!"

"Oh yes; I did!"

"But what was your mother thinking of!"

"Not about me, I guess. She has no idea where I am. Nor Sandy either."

"You didn't run away again?"

"I did. I knew one of the Dutch girls: she's been with me as a maid while Mattress was ill. I wrote you that? Jocelyn, I'm horribly hungry. Do you suppose—But don't tell Dad! Promise me that, not until we've talked! Then you may if you want to, truly. But not now! Promise me, Jotsy, I'm damn near dead," Norma said, with an ugly little twist of her lip that Jocelyn had never seen before, "and I'll go the whole way if you make me mad!"

Jocelyn laid a cool hand on the child's forehead. "You've no fever," she said, "but you look as if a few days in bed wouldn't hurt you. My poor little girl!"

"C—c—cut the sob stuff," Norma said, with trembling lips, "and give me a cigaret. And could I have some brandy and maybe some eggs? I'm so damn-tired."

Jocelyn went quickly and quietly about the room, extinguishing all the lamps but one.

"Get out of your clothes and into a hot bath, Norma," she said, "and I'll go downstairs and see what I can do. Who saw you come in?"

"Nobody. I walked in. It was dark, and there wasn't a sound. I came upstairs and waited."

"I'll be back as soon as I can. That's right; get into the bath. That's the most restful thing you can do."

Jocelyn descended to the pantry. Lorenz and one of the underbutlers were there: the big nickel percolator was bubbling with fresh coffee: there were platters of sandwiches and cold meats and cake waiting the bridge players' pleasure.

"I went to a formal dinner tonight, Lorenz," Jocelyn explained, "and of course I'm starving. Could I have—yes, and two of those—and have you a little pot I could take coffee upstairs in? Perfect. Yes; will you carry it up as far as my door? Thanks."

She accompanied the man to her door, slipped inside with the tray. Norma had emerged from the bathroom, fresh and clean, and looking more like herself, with her slender little body enveloped in a great bathrobe. She fell ravenously upon the food, and Jocelyn watched her for a few minutes in silence. But she was too anxious to refrain long from questioning.

"Norma, you must tell me, dear. You didn't run away?"

"Oh, but I did. I'd had this Dutch girl with me, and I asked her to hide me on the boat and she did."

"Darling, you're joking!"

"No; I'm not. I went down to the dock and walked on the boat and she put me in the closet until we'd sailed. Nobody bothered me. Only I stayed six days in that room and only got out once except just to the door, and that was when she loaned me her hat and coat one hot night and I walked about the deck a few times," Norma said indifferently, with her mouth full.

"But the stewardesses—"

"There weren't any. There were only three school teachers and these six Dutch girls; we took care of our own rooms——"

"But your mother—she must be simply beside herself!"

"No; she's not. I told her in a note that I was spending a few days with a girl friend on one of the islands, and she'll not dare move until she hears from me. Mother's much more scared of another Norma Fordyce scandal than I am or you are!"

"Norma, what a mad thing to do! We'll cable her tonight, of course. How did you get off the boat?"

"Walked off. The captain's about a thousand; he didn't see anything. I'd changed clothes with Signa; afterward we changed back . Oh, Jotsy, I'm home! If you knew how I've dreamed of getting back to you and Dad. And food——"

"One of the richest girls in the world," Jocelyn thought seeing the small hand shake as Norma reached for a cigaret, and the glint of tears in her eyes. Poor forlorn little friendless thing!

"I'm so grateful—so grateful to God that you got here!" Jocelyn said aloud. "How'd you know I was here?"

"I didn't. Not until I came upstairs. I was going to hide in my room until I was sure Dad was home, and I saw this door open and your things around. So I came in and looked at everything to make sure, and just then Agnes came across the hall and I went through the window. And then I waited again."

"You had money to get down here?"

"I had a bag with everything in it, clothes and money. But the last minute someone stole it on the wharf, I suppose. I couldn't wait to find it; I was too nervous, so I walked on the Calandaria and let it go. So I couldn't write checks for Signa and the other girls that knew, but I will. I'll talk to Dad. Jotsy, when did you move into this room?"

"I'm not really in. But I am moving into Hill Acres, Norma, to stay." Jocelyn, in her evening gown, suddenly felt the color come up upon her bare shoulders and into her cheeks, and laughed with the embarrassment of a child. "Your father and I are being married day after tomorrow," she said.

Norma's face grew as red as her own. "Oh, Jocelyn, I am very glad," she said quickly and awkwardly. "Dad—Dad must be awfully glad. But I—but I—Look, I'm messing it all up again!"

"Oh, no; you're not, don't be silly! It merely means—we can easily tell people—" Jocelyn's floundering attempts to make light of it, to make it sound merely a pleasurable addition to the plan, fell somewhat flat.

Jocelyn was smitten by a sudden desolating realization that this runaway girl, whose wardrobe and governess had been left behind her, halfway across the southern ocean, would not be exactly a conventional third party on a honeymoon. The vision of Canadian woods, of cool blue mountains and shady great log cabins faded away: the vision of the moving car, and her shoulder against Philip's. Here was the old problem, eternally new, of Norma. With whom could they possibly leave her now?"

"Well, the first thing," she began sensibly, "is to get you rested, and cable yuor mother and buy you some clothes. But there must be lots of your clothes here. I'll see what I can find in the way of nightgowns and things."

"I want to stay in here with you," said Norma.

"You shall. And when we go on our honeymoon—well, I suppose we'll have to take you along. We are going to Canada. We were going to drive."

"But I always get ill driving, especially if it's hot!"

"I know. I was just thinking—"

"You could leave me with Granny."

"No; she wouldn't like that. She's often out late, and she's moving up to the Rogue anyway next week."

"Well, I won't go to the Rogue. Fishing with the water up to your waist all day. I loathe it! I'd rather go somewhere else, Norma urged. Jocelyn was puzzled by her feverish manner. "I'd study, really I would. I'd work like mad at French. Mother couldn't say a word if you were married to Dad."

"It isn't all as simple as that, Norma, I've got to get you father in here. We'll see what he thinks."

Jocelyn went to Philip's door. It was immediately opened to her knock. He was in his dressing gown; he was just going to bed.

"Jocelyn, how cute of you to come to call me! What's up?"

"I'll tell you in a minute. Come into my room," she said. "I don't want anyone to hear! Norma's here."

"Norma!" he echoed in an amazed whisper.

They were at her door now; she opened it, and Norma rushed forward and was in his arms.

"What's up, you little monkey!" Philip said, sitting down with her on his knee. "What is all this? Where's your mother?"

"She and Sandy are back in Honolulu," Norma said. Jocelyn noted that she had suddenly gone white and drooping; all her mischievous triumph in her escape faded.

"Who'd you come with?"

"A Dutch girl I knew. On a freighter. She was third pastry cook in the palace at The Hague, and she and these others were friends of the captain, and they were on a trip. And the rest were school teachers who sang and everything."

"And you came with these girls!"

"They didn't know I was on board. We had three little cabins aft, and I stayed in my cabin, except sometimes for a few minutes at night. Nobody knew but Signa and Frieda, and they would not tell."

"But your mother—what was she thinking about? She never wired me. I would have met you! Norma, that was a silly thing to do!"

* * *

"Mother doesn't know yet where I am. I left her a note saying I was staying with friends on one of the plantations, and I suppose she's quietly trying to find out which. It's only six days, Dad, and we can cable her tomorrow."

"I'll cable tonight, of course. Where was Sandy when you got away?"

"Asleep. She always takes naps, hot afternoons, before we swim," Norma began wearily. "I was lying on my bed reading, and she was lying on hers, and Mattress was downstairs somewhere talking to one of the French waiters, I suppose. So I walked out, and first I was going to kill myself, and then I saw this girl on the dock and she said they were sailing on the Celandaria, and I asked how soon. She said in about half an hour. So then I offered her a thousand dollars if she'd risk getting me back to America, and she said yes, she thought she could do it, because the captain was so old and there wasn't any stewardess. So I went back into my room and put a few things into a bag and went out the tennis-court door, nobody was around, and went down to the dock and stood beside some lumber just looking at the ship as if I was interested, and then when I turned around my bag was gone. But I didn't mind that, I had a little money in my purse, and I knew that, when Sandy and Mother and Mattress missed the bag they'd believe I'd gone off visiting somewhere."

"And what did you eat?"

"Oh, there was plenty to eat. Signa and Frieda would bring me sandwiches and cups of coffee and pineapples. It was too hot to eat, anyway!"

"Norma, why ddin't you stop to think before you did a thing like this? If the newspapers get hold of this—it would be just one more escapade. Why do you do these things, dear?"

"I wanted to get to you, Dad," Norma said, snuggling against him.

"But that's such nonsense, dear. You could have told your mother or you could have written me. I don't know," Philip added with a sigh, "exactly what we're going to do now. But we'll arrange it somehow. You knew that Jocelyn and I were getting married on Saturday?"

"I'm so pleased, Dad." Norma seemed subdued and tired. "Everything's all right now," she said. "I'm home."

"But what was this nonsense about committing suicide? Was somebody unkind to you?"

"Oh no," Norma said, tears suddenly in her eyes. "They were all wonderful. Parties for me and for Mother and for Spazzolari—it was one party after another! Mother never was in bed until broad daylight. I hardly ever saw her."

"But Sandy was fairly decent?"

"Yes; Sandy took me everywhere. At ship dances and beach parties there was Sandy. I hate her. But then," Norma concluded wearily, "she hates me, too."

"Well," said Philip, in a philosophical tone, "you'll be an unexpected guest at your dad's wedding, Spotty. No child can ask fairer than that. And after that I think you'll have to stay quietly with Granny here for a few weeks. We'll get some nice girl to keep you company—Jocelyn, a bright thought! Would one of those younger cousins of yours come down here to stay with Norma?"

"Bam or Peaches? Why not? It's vacation now. Bam would go out of her senses with joy."

"And I'd trust you, Spotty, not to let us down. Then after we get back we're going to ranch-hunt. We're going to buy a place up in the Sierras—"

Trout Fishing In North Carolina Parks Improves

ASHEVILLE, N. C.—(UP)—Trout fishermen in western North Carolina made a record catch during the 1940 angling season, the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service reports.

The number of trout caught in the Pisgah and Sherwood forest Federal game areas was the largest ever recorded.

During the season ending Aug. 13, 14,314 trout were caught in the two areas.

In 48 open fishing days in the Pisgah preserve, 1,700 anglers snared an average of 4.2 trout apiece, an increase of 145 per cent over the number taken last season. The catches averaged 14 ounces per fisherman.

In the Sherwood area, 11 open fishing days attracted 1,259 anglers who averaged 6.4 trout, weighing 18 ounces per fisherman, 108 per cent above the 1939 season.

The increased catches were attributed in large part to new methods of re-stocking and control employed in the past few years.

British Airman Upholds Finest RAF Tradition

DOVER—(INS)—Typical of the courage and steady nerves of those flying daredevils who comprise the Royal Air Force is a twenty-three-year-old Pilot-Sergeant whose plane was shot down in an aerial dogfight over the English Channel.

As I stood watching his encounter with a German Messerschmidt fighter, his plane at twenty thousand feet was suddenly hit by a blast of cannon fire and immediately burst into flames.

The pilot desperately looped, dived and zoomed in an effort to extinguish the flames and was but a thousand feet from the ground and almost engulfed by the fire when I saw him climb out on the wing only to have his leg caught in one of the plane's fixtures.

Desperately kicking his leg free he dove clear of the plane, successfully opened his parachute and landed only one hundred yards away from the burning wreckage.

As I rushed toward him the pilot was freeing himself from his parachute and his first request was for a cigaret which he lit himself. His hands weren't even trembling.

The pilot was more distressed at the loss of the plane than his own narrow escape from death.

He exclaimed disgustingly to me: "Just my luck; I crashed one yesterday, too."

Informally Speaking...

Nov. 11, 1940.

Lucy, dear:

OUR college students seem to be much in the news today, and so I'm all set to tell you about their varied activities at schools near and far. . . . Elsie McConnell (daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul McConnell) is busy with all sorts of things down at Randolph-Macon Women's college in Lynchburg, Va. . . . She is on the sophomore hockey team, serves on the social committee of the school, and is a member of Pi, a secret society.

Coming a bit closer home then, we have news of five Mansfielders pledging Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity at Ohio university in Athens. . . . They are William Davidson, Martin Franks, Marshall Smith, Donald Stout and Virgil Wolff. . . . And speaking of that fraternity: William Kruspe (a sophomore there in the college of commerce) recently was elected secretary.

* * * * *

Then over at the College of Wooster, William Long, a junior, has been elected to the Chemistry club. This group is open to chemistry majors and meets twice each month for special study of some important work in the field of chemistry. . . . In order to be eligible for membership, a student must have no grade less than "B" for three semesters of study. . . . Bill, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. D. P. Long, is a graduate of Mansfield Senior high school, and in addition to majoring in chemistry, he is a member of the college German club.

* * * * *

And while we're on the subject of Wooster college, Lucy, I mustn't forget to tell you that Marilou Sowash and Gretchen Edwards spent the week-end there. . . . They attended the Wooster-Bowling Green football game Saturday afternoon and a dance that evening as the guests of Richard Caton and George Koch, both students at the school.

* * * * *

THIS past week-end was Homecoming at Baldwin-Wallace college in Berea and two members of last year's graduating class from here went up for the festivities. . . . They were Edith Mast and Elizabeth Jane Miller . . . Miriam Miller accompanied them, and during their trip the girls visited Elizabeth Jane's and Miriam's brother, Maxwell, who's a freshman at the college.

Mrs. Helen Hasenzahl is anxiously awaiting the outcome of the National Crochet contest, now being conducted in New York City, as she has entered a centerpiece and table cloth in the competition. . . . The centerpiece is a replica of a design which took first prize at the St. Louis World fair. . . . Prize winners will be announced the latter part of this month. . . . Mrs. Hasenzahl is crocheting a bedspread now—the motif of which is an original dahlia design.

The Women's Society of Christian Service of the Pavonia church will entertain Wednesday noon with a covered-dish dinner for all members of the society, and women of the community, it was announced today.

Gave Vows Last Week

Church Organizations Plan Diversified Activities

IN addition to all the club and social activities planned this week, there are also many church meetings which will keep the already busy community leaders rushing from place to place in order to fulfill their engagements. Today will be particularly busy. Among the scheduled events will be meetings of the Madam Cotta class, the Alpha class, the Katherine Aberle Missionary society, the Mary Voegele Missionary society, St. Luke's Women's guild, the Florence Welty Missionary society, and the Rachel France guild. Details of these events are printed in the Schedule of Events.

On Tuesday members of Bethany circle of the First Presbyterian church will meet with Mrs. W. B. Ford, Chevy Chase road, for a Dutch luncheon and program. The Pilgrim guild of the First Congregational church will have a luncheon at the church with a travel program to follow.

Additional Tuesday church events include sessions of the Star class, the Judge Mansfield Bible class, the Dorcas and Golden Rule classes, the guild of St. Paul's church and the Love and Friendship class.

Wednesday will be marked by sessions of the Katherine Von Bora and Esther classes, the Women's Missionary society of the First Brethren church, the Women's guild of St. Luke's and the third district of the First Lutheran church.

Included on the Thursday calendar are sessions of the Mary Markley society, the Women's guild of the Mayflower church, the Loyal Daughters of St. John's and Class 13 of the same church.

YOUTH ELECTS.

Members of the Christian Youth Fellowship held a business meeting at 6:30 p. m. last night in the basement of the First Christian church. Officers elected were Merritt Caton, president; Mary Jane McCarty, secretary, and Donald Laser, treasurer. Committees appointed were: Joe Wilcox, worship; Mary Jane McCarty, personal; James Thomas, study course, and Beverly Wilburn, social and recreation. Donna Mae Bonecutter led the devotions while M. D. Miller was in charge of the recreation period. Lunch was served later in the evening.

MAKE DRESSES

Under stress of necessity, Americans can do anything that anyone else can. Long known as masters in designing and making baby clothes, the French have had their industry ruined by the war. Americans have found right under their very noses people who can make baby clothes just as good as the French. These are the women of Puerto Rico, Uncle Sam's lovely tropical isle at the entrance to the Caribbean. The needlework of the Puerto Rican women is world-famed and experts say their dresses, coats, hats, crib spreads, and pillow covers, are on a par with the French products.

COMING EVENTS CROWD NOVEMBER CALENDAR

Federation Lecture By Gordon B. Enders Planned For Thursday; Final Book Review Later In Month.

By FRANCES E. GENSLEY

ON A day like this when the rain slants against the window panes, and a cold, damp fog penetrates to one's very bones it hardly seems likely that anybody will feel very ambitious, yet we all know that there are things to be done. This isn't the time to give you any "so many days until Christmas" talk, but look at the calendar and you'll see what's meant.

But even though you're in no mood to think about turkeys and tinsel, Christmas cards and Jan. 1 bills, you may be interested in refreshing your memory about the approaching events for the remainder of this month.

It had been my rather useless hope that with the passing of election week, events would settle down to a dull and deadly routine, but no—there are plenty of things to keep us all rushing about.

You Federation members had better be sure to note that the Thursday lecture will be held at the Madison theater instead of the Ohio. Gordon B. Enders will speak on "Nowhere Else in the World" at 11 a. m., and luncheon will be served at the Women's Club. The Ohio theater will be the scene of the annual Gasco Food Institute at 9:15 a. m. Wednesday, Thursday and Friday mornings.

By the way, while we're speaking of the Women's Club, there's something new which might interest you up there. The Club has undertaken to serve regular special dinners each Thursday evening, and I understand that chicken is on the menu if you order in advance. Naturally with Thursday being the day off for household employes in this community, those tasty and well served dinners at the Club will come as a boon to housewives.

Then you won't be forgetting either the final review in the series of four sponsored by the Mansfield Dental clinic. It is set for Nov. 27 at the Ohio when Dorothy Fuldheim will present "For Whom the Bell Tolls" by Ernest Hemingway. Tickets, by the way, may still be purchased at the Book Shop, and proceeds of all tickets sold by the clinic and their representatives will be used to supply dental care for indigent children.

MEET THURSDAY.

Mrs. Kipp Entertains Future Daughter-in-Law

Mrs. Philip Kipp entertained with a party for her son, Paul, and his bride-elect, Miss Mary Lotz of Columbus, at the family home in South Boulevards Saturday evening. Miss Lotz, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Lotz, also of Columbus, will exchange nuptial vows with Mr. Kipp on Nov. 20 before the altar of the First Christian church.

There were 26 friends and relatives of the couple in attendance at the party, and donkey bridge was the diversion. Mrs. Floyd Thompson won the prize, which she presented to Miss Lotz. The guests were seated at a long table for luncheon. A bouquet of baby chrysanthemums formed the centerpiece. The guests gave the bride-elect a shower of miscellaneous gifts, and she received an electrical gift from the hostess.
